U. S. ACTS IN DYNAMITE PLOT

7 FIREMEN HURT IN E. BOSTON

Seven firemen were hurt fighting two fires on Border street, East Boston, today. $30,000 damage was done.

District Chief John Godbold was hit on the head by a hose which got out of control of the men handling it. Godbold was knocked into a deep pool of water and was painfully hurt.

Lieutenant Thomas Flynn of Engine 9 was overcome by smoke.

Hosemen Frank Coyle, Augustus Moran and T. J. O'Brien of Engine 9 were knocked downstairs by an explosion of varnish, suffering severe bruises.

Hoseman Edward Jones of Engine 5 was blown by a second explosion from a third floor to the floor below. His injuries were so severe it was necessary to send him home in a hose wagon.

Hoseman Crowley of Chemical 7 was hurled down a stairway by one of the explosions.

Two alarms were sounded for the first fire, which started in the boiler room of the Federal Building Finish Company, No. 187 Border street. The structure was wrecked at a loss of $15,000.

The need of a special ferry boat for fire apparatus called to East Boston was demonstrated again. Fire Commissioner Cole is quoted as saying that from the time apparatus from the city side was loaded on the East Boston ferry, seven minutes elapsed before it was at the fire.

The second fire was at No. 139 Border street, occupied by the Phonoharp Company. The Border street front of the building was in flames by the time the apparatus arrived.

This fire was particularly hard to fight and the work of the firemen in holding it is warmly praised by owners of surrounding property.

Varnish explosions drove the men back repeatedly, and the injuries of five men were directly due to being caught in these blasts.

Losses reported include: Phonoharp Company, $15,000; Graham & Cameron, dry lumber, $1,000 to $2,000; James Jackson, mantles, $1,000 to $2,000; W. E. Mahoney, cork cutter, $2,000; L. C. Sweeney, $1,000; H. O. Ackerly Lumber Company, $2,000.

TROOPS AT WEST VIRGINIA COAL MINE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 31.—After it was thought that peace had been restored in the Colin Creek coal fields, fighting is going on again today between miners and armed guards. Governor Glasscock has ordered out a company of militia. Several men were wounded, two of them fatally.

RUMOR OF ANOTHER ISTHMIAN CANAL

LONDON, Aug. 31.—A sensational report that an Anglo-French syndicate is being formed to construct a canal through Central America to counteract the Panama Canal difficulty over tolls for non-American ships was received here today from Berlin. The origin of the report was unknown, but the telegram said that it was the principal topic of conversation upon the German Bourse. It received little credence here, as no confirmation was obtainable.

NO STOCK MARKET.

Stock markets in this city and New York were closed today and will not open until Tuesday. It was decided to include today in the Labor Day period. Stock trading has been so dull of late that brokers and others advocated shutting up the exchanges for the short sessions which are held on Saturday.

On the New York Stock Exchange yesterday only 140,000 shares were traded in and this made a low record for August.

Gov. Foss and the German Emperor, King Edward VII. and General Booth visited the Convict Ship now in Boston. Why don't you? **

Taft at Beverly, Plays Golf and Calls on Meyer

President Taft arrived in Boston early today from Ohio, motored up the North Shore to "Parramatta," Beverly, was in time to sit down at the family breakfast table and then bustled out, per motor, to the Myopia Golf Club for golf.

On the way back to lunch at "Parramatta" the President dropped in for a short call on Secretary Meyer who is convalescing at his home in Hamilton.

When he arrived in Boston the President was accompanied by Major Thomas L. Rhoads, his military aide, and two regular army officers. They were met by a reception committee from Beverly, which accompanied them to Beverly in a second car.

The President looked well. He bowed genially to people along the route who saluted him.

It is expected that the President will be in Beverly now for the rest of the Summer, barring a few trips. He has half-promised to visit Rochester, N. Y., on September 16. And he will be the big card at some gatherings of Bay State Republicans for the good of the campaign.

Kills Wife, Fearing Brother Might Win Her, Then Kills Self

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—James McManus, a twenty-one-year-old consumptive, shot and killed his nineteen-year-old wife and then committed suicide, fearing that his own death, which physicians had predicted within a few weeks, would enable his brother to marry his widow. A girl of ten months old was made an orphan by the tragedy.

McManus and his brother, Frank, had been bitter rivals for her hand. She was lured to this city by Frank two or three years ago. James persuaded her to leave the brother and made her his bride.

James caught a heavy cold last Winter. Pneumonia set in and when he recovered it was only to find that tuberculosis had set in. The husband surmised that his brother was planning to win the girl after his death. He told his wife and warned her that when he died she would have to go too. The wife laughed and assured him she hated the very ground on which his brother walked.

He continued to suspect her and while she was preparing breakfast McManus cornered her. He pulled a revolver from his coat and emptied four chambers into her body.

He turned the revolver upon himself and fired a bullet into his own brain. The wife's sister said Mrs. McManus idolized her husband.

BOY BURNED WHILE "PLAYING INDIAN" IS KILLED BY INJURIES

Five-year old William Graham died today from burns received while playing around a bonfire in his new Indian suit near his home, No. 46 Ditson street, Dorchester.

His first name was William, but the best his childish lips could do, when asked his name, was "Willum." That was a pet name for him all along Ditson street, over on Westville street and around the admiring neighborhood.

William was the younger of two sons of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Graham. Mr. Graham is a milk inspector in the City Health Department.

JAIL FOR CHINAMAN WHO HAD A PISTOL

Yee Moo, a Chinaman, whom the police believe is a gunman from New York and a member of the Hep Sing Tong, was sentenced to a month in the House of Correction today for carrying a loaded revolver. There is a feeling of uneasiness in Chinatown since the coming of these strangers.

CHAMP CLARK PAYS GOVERNOR A CALL

Speaker Champ Clark of the National House of Representatives was a visitor at the State House today. He talked with Governor Foss for about an hour. He went to the Democratic outing at Canobie Lake this afternoon with the Governor in Mr. Foss' automobile.

Umpires—Rigler and Finneran. Attendance—2,000.

FOGEL FIELD, Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—The Pilgrims clashed with the Phillies in a double session this afternoon and although the sky was cloudy and rain threatening a fairly good sized crowd was out for the bargain. Manager Kling was much pleased by the way his boys went after the Philly pitchers yesterday and predicted before the games today that his team would bat out one if not two victories.

This is the last day on the road for awhile for the Pilgrims and Manager Kling is anxious that his boys take a brace of games so as to be over the .500 in the most successful Western trip the Boston National team has taken for several years.

FIRST GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Pilgrims—Walsh threw Campbell out. McDonald walked. McDonald died stealing, Killifer to Doolan. Sweeney struck out. NO RUNS.

Phillies—Paskert singled to left. Dodge sacrificed, Hess to Houser. Magee fanned. Cravath also fanned. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Pilgrims—Paskert was under Jackson's liner. Titus flied to Magee. Houser walked. Bridwell flied to Magee. NO RUNS.

Phillies—Luderus flied to Bridwell. Walsh walked. Doolan hit into a double play, Bridwell to Sweeney to Houser. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Pilgrims—Walsh tossed Gowdy out. Doolan to Luderus finished Hess. Campbell singled to centre. McDonald singled to centre, and when Paskert threw wild to third Campbell scored. McDonald raced to third. Sweeney died, Walsh to Luderus. ONE RUN.

Phillies—Killifer fanned. Moore singled to right. Moore died stealing, Gowdy to Sweeney. Paskert struck out. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Pilgrims—Jackson fanned. Titus flied to Cravath. Houser singled to right. So did Bridwell. Gowdy singled to right, scoring Houser. Bridwell took third and Gowdy second on the throw-in. Hess fanned. ONE RUN.

Phillies—Dodge popped to Sweeney. Magee fanned. Cravath singled to right. Luderus doubled to right, but was out, Umpire Finneran claiming he did not touch first, Titus to Sweeney to Houser. NO RUNS.

DROWNED TRYING TO REACH WATER LILY

MIDDLEBORO, Aug. 31.—A white water lily drew Arepia D'Lelia, a railroad section man here, to his death in the Nemasket River. He talked of it all day, and when he went over the river again on his way back he left the men and went down to get it. The river shelves off sharply, and as he walked in with outstretched hands he suddenly plunged down to a depth of seventeen feet. He couldn't swim and was drowned. The body was recovered.

POLITICS FIRST, SAYS BEVERIDGE

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 31.—"If politics interferes with business, cut out the business" is the slogan passed to county and district chairmen by Former Senator Albert J. Beveridge, candidate on the Progressive ticket for Governor of Indiana.

FENWAY PARK, Aug. 31.—All roads led to Fenway Park today. Thousands of baseball "fans" turned out in order to see Jake Stahl and his Red Sox clash with the Champion Athletics in the final game of their series. It was estimated that over 25,000 "fans" were inside of the enclosure when the game started.

The Red Sox were determined to make it three straight victories from Mack's men and in this way prove conclusively that they are the class of the American League. The Sox won the first two games in decisive fashion by the scores of 8 to 1 and 7 to 1.

Joe Wood warmed up before the game, and, judging by the way that he tossed the ball to Catcher Cady, it looked as though the "Kansas Cyclone" was in condition to win his thirtieth game of the season and his fourteenth straight victory.

Wood Star of Majors.

Wood has been the pitching star of the major leagues this season. There may be Walter Johnsons, Rube Marquards, Ed Walshes and Nap Ruckers, but "Smoky Joe" appears to have a little something on the best of them. It is stated that President McAleer of the Red Sox offered $50,000 for Johnson. If this is true, we wonder what McAleer would ask for Wood if he offered this sensational young twirler for sale.

Mack did not appear to have a pitcher capable of holding his own with Wood. The champion's box men have been batted hard during the past few days. The one time mighty trio—Plank, Bender and Coombs—has failed to stop the rush of the Stahls. Mack was undecided whether to again send one of his veterans into the fray or to take a chance with one of his young twirlers.

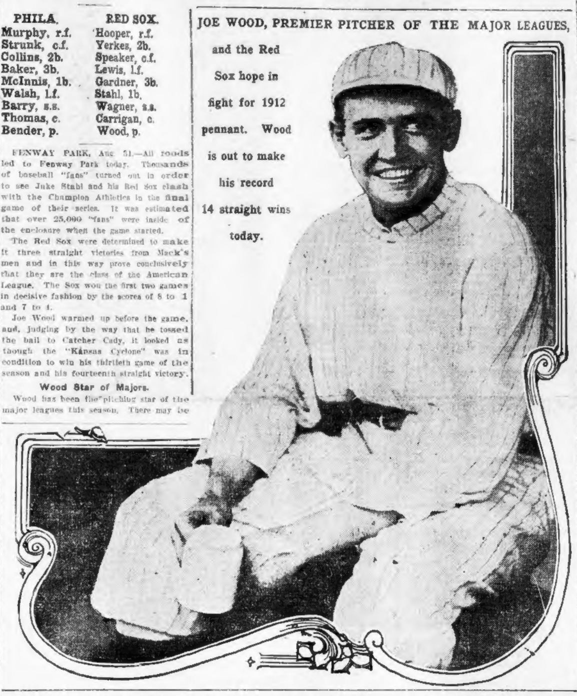
The Red Sox are now playing the best ball of any major league club. Instead of slumping, as was predicted by many baseball experts, they have increased there pace.

Every member of the team is playing fast, snappy baseball. The infield is working like clock work while the outfield, as usual, is playing grand baseball.

If the locals can continue at their present pace for ten days more they will have the pennant clinched beyond the last question of a doubt.

The Athletic players have almost all admitted that the Sox will win the flag. Mack's men, however, have not given up the fight, and will play the game to the limit. Even though they have no chance of winning the flag, they hope to beat the Senators for second place.

The crowd that turned out for the game today was an enthusiastic one, and cheered each member of the Sox team when he pulled off a spectacular play. Everybody was rooting hard for three straight wins from the champions.



JOE WOOD, PREMIER PITCHER OF THE MAJOR LEAGUES, and the Red Sox hope in fight for 1912 pennant. Wood is out to make his record 14 straight wins today.

DEATH MARS BIG AUTO RACE MEET

ELGIN, Ill., Aug. 31.—An accident in which one man was killed and two others probably fatally injured marked the second day of the big auto race meeting here today. The dead man is H. B. Landon of South Elgin.

Landon was driving his auto across the tracks of the electric line when its engine went dead, and it was struck squarely in the centre by an oncoming train.

A series of accidents before the race started forced the withdrawal of four cars, among them the big Fiat that was to have been driven by Teddy Tetzlaff, the favorite. DePalma's car, which was in trouble before the race, was repaired in time to get away with the others.

George Clarke, driver of a Mercedes and Fred Malone, his mechanician, were painfully injured and their car demolished in making the Hornbeck turn on the sixth lap of the free-for-all race today.

Malone was thrown from the car into the straw bales erected as a buffer at the turn. Clark's head was flung backward striking the gasoline tank, inflicting a deep scalp wound. Both wrists were sprained. Both front wheels were torn off the car and the radiator was smashed.

FROST IN MIDDLEBORO; CRANBERRIES SUFFER

MIDDLEBORO, Aug. 31.—The first frost of the season killed some of the first-year cranberry crops early today. The mercury went down to 31 degrees. The cranberry men were kept on watch all night, and were all ready to flood the bogs, if necessary.

PELLETIER PLANNING THOROUGH INQUIRY

The federal government through the Department of Justice at Washington, it became known today, has taken up the investigation of the planting of dynamite in Lawrence at the time of the strike, in connection with which William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, and others have been indicted.

The ground upon which the federal government has stepped into the case was reported to be the suspicion that the explosive, or at least a part of it, placed in Lawrence was brought into Massachusetts from New York.

William H. Rice, a Milton quarryman, has confessed that he furnished some of the dynamite to Ernest W. Pitman, the mill builder of Andover, who killed himself last Tuesday rather than appear before the Suffolk County Grand Jury.

Pelletier Summons State Police.

District Attorney Pelletier, it was learned also today, will have before the Grand Jury on Tuesday some of the State police who made investigations in connection with the dynamite at the time it was found, to see if further facts in connection with the remarkable conspiracy cannot be unearthed.

Captain Harry Proctor and State Policemen Eustace, Bradford and Smith worked on the dynamite case. The explosive was what is known as 75 per cent. dynamite, a very powerful form of the composition.

It is generally believed that Pitman, in his admissions to Pelletier, which led to the Grand Jury investigation, mentioned the names of more than President Wood, Dennis J. Collins and a third man of prominence who was indicted, and that the

SAY BREEN GOT $500 FOR DYNAMITE PLANT

District Attorney is continuing his investigations for the purpose of implicating others if he can obtain the information that Pitman could have supplied if he had not sealed his lips with a bullet.

May Arraign Three Together.

John J. Breen, the Lawrence undertaker and school committeeman, who paid a fine of $500 after being found guilty of "planting" the dynamite, received $500 or $600 for his work, it was stated today.

The third man named in the indictment, sick at home as a result of an accident, is expected to surrender himself Tuesday. It is probable at that all three men will be arraigned together, either that day or shortly afterward.

The strange contrast between the men named in the indictment—Dennis Collins, a dog-fancier, who the police say once served a sentence for the larceny of a dog, is named in the same line with William M. Wood, the foremost figure in the American textile world, and a third man, said to be scarcely less well known than Wood—kept the interest in the case at a high pitch today.

The strongest interest is attached to Breen's own story of his part in the plant, which he has expiated by paying the $500 fine imposed in the Salem Court.

Breen says he got about $500 or $600, but the amount included services he had rendered in other ways for the person or persons who employed him. He told the District Attorney that one of the defendants paid him.

Later, when he was fined, he could raise no more money. His mother had to pay his fine. It is said those for whom he did the job were dissatisfied with his efforts. They regarded it as a bungling piece of work. He received no further financial aid. He had spent the money he got.

He claims he paid Collins $100 for aiding him to carry the dynamite from Boston to Lawrence. It is understood, however, that Collins claims he received only $50.

Rumored $4,000 Paid.

At the time of the rumors of a "plant" were made, resulting in the arrest and convection of Breen, there was a story that between $4,000 and $5,000 had been paid to the men implicated in the actual execution of the plot, but it now appears that whatever promises might have been made, not more than $500 or $600 was paid for the work done, and even that included other work.

Breen says he was in the office of the man whose name has not been disclosed on January 20, and that Pitman was in the office of Wood. The man alluded to called up Wood's office and talked to Pitman, telling him Breen was there. Pitman went to that office, met Breen, called up someone, and then went to East Milton to the quarry of William H. Rice.

He got a quantity of dynamite from Rice upon the representation, according to Rice, that he needed it to blow up some stumps on land in Worcester. Rice came to Boston with Pitman.

Rice Saw Dynamite Delivered.

He says he did so for the purpose of talking to him with a view to induce him to buy an interest in the quarry. He saw Pitman deliver the dynamite to a man he met at the corner of Washington and Franklin streets.

That man is supposed to be Breen, who took it to Lawrence. It is said that Collins told him all he knows about the matter.

Breen and Pitman both confessed to complicity in the plot. While the District Attorney has the statement made by Pitman, he cannot use it. It is only helpful in seeking other information. It is inadmissible as evidence. He involved other big mill men. By his death those men are saved.

All these facts have a definite bearing on the question of jurisdiction in the case. Even if any money was passed in Lawrence, it is understood the District Attorney argues that if it were part of the general conspiracy formed and executed in this city, he would have jurisdiction to take action.

If it were a separate and distinct act, unconnected with the conspiracy formed and executed in this city, he would have no jurisdiction.

It is said that the District Attorney has evidence of several meetings in this city of the parties privy to the plan formed here, which is the basis of the indictment.

The outcome of the Grand Jury investigation of the dynamite plot has caused a sensation in the textile industry, as well as in Lawrence and this city, where the parties are well known. Wood is the one who had been referred to as the "man higher up" in the course of the investigation.

Sought "Man Higher Up."

At the time of the conviction of Breen and the fining of him $500, there was a general demand that those behind him be punished, in view of the awful character of the crime. It is said that Breen, an undertaker, had no interest in the strike and would not be likely to do what he did on his own initiative. It was argued in the community that he was the instrument employed by others who were more vitally concerned in the fight between the owners and mill operatives.

Nothing was done until District Attorney Pelletier decided to have the Grand Jury investigate the charges that had come to his notice that the plot was hatched in this city. Pitman, who thought the entire matter had blown over and was judicially dead by reason of the judgment in the Breen case, talked too much with the District Attorney.

It is understood that District Attorney Pelletier has found other evidence to support the story told by Pitman in addition to the confession of Breen. Breen was a willing witness. He had been treated shabbily after his conviction, from his point of view.

He argued that his fine ought to have been paid by others, but the "others" argued that his work had been so unsatisfactory and bungling that he ought to stand the penalty for it.

It is understood that he feels that he has done a public service by telling what he knew and that a great burden has been lifted from his mind.

BEWARE BOSSES, WARNS COLONEL

BARRE, Vt., Aug. 31.—Before a crowd of 7,000 in the public square here today Colonel Roosevelt, making a strong appeal for support of the State ticket in Vermont of next Tuesday's election, and urging the voters to tear themselves away from old party lines, said:

"Since I have been in Vermont I have been thirty or forty times informed by adherents that they intended to vote for me in November, but that next Tuesday they intend to vote for the Republicans, while others are for the Democratic candidate. Now I wish to emphasize to you as strongly as I know how that the only way you can stand for the Progressive National ticket—that is, for the principles of the Progressive party and incidentally for me—is to support Mr. Metzger and the whole Progressive State ticket next Tuesday.

"Remember that the election outside of Vermont will be watched eagerly and judged entirely from the national standpoint. Every political boss of the type of Penrose, every head of a big corporation of the type of Mr. Archbold will be eagerly hoping for the defeat of the Progressive ticket in Vermont. The Penroses and the Archbolds and all their type do not care a rap which of the old parties triumph. They are perfectly willing to have you vote either the Democratic or Republican ticket if only you will vote against the Progressive ticket.

"Look out for them. They are trying to frame up something on you as they did it on me. The trouble is that they think everyone must have crooked motives because they have, but we're not all alike, I am glad to say."

On the way here Roosevelt was cheered by clusters of farmers. From here the Colonel went to Randolph.

DEMOCRATS AT CANOBIE LAKE

Thousands of Democrats flocked today from all parts of New England to Canobie Lake, N. H., where the first great Democratic gathering of the national campaign in New England was held. The pow-wow drew a score of men of national prominence. A delegation numbering hundreds went on a special train from Boston, and other parts of Massachusetts and New England contributed their throngs.

Champ Clark, speaker of the House of Representatives, was the principal speaker. Congressman Ollie James of Kentucky, who presided at the Democratic convention at Baltimore, was another speaker. Governor Marshall of Indiana, the Democratic nominee for vice-president, was expected to come if he could properly arrange his Maine speaking program.

The other speakers included Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald, District Attorney Pelletier, Mayor Barry of Cambridge, Congressmen Murray, Curley, Peters and Thayer, Chairman Thomas P. Riley of the Democratic State Committee, Sherman L. Whipple, Louis D. Brandeis and Charles B. Strecker.

Feast for Thousands.

Arrangements for dinner were in the hands of Humphrey O'Sullivan and Paul Hannigan. That they made ample preparations is evidenced by this menu—as arranged for the whole party:

2,000 pounds of fancy brisket.
2,000 pounds of thick rib.
2,000 pounds of navel end.
1,000 chickens.
2 barrels of spare ribs and corned shoulders.
50 bushels of potatoes.
10,000 ears of corn.
25 bushels of tomatoes.
25 bushels of cucumbers.
15 bushels of beets.
8 bushels of butter beans.
1,000 loaves of bread.
AND
15,000 bottles of beer.

Run Special Trains.

The affair had been arranged by the Democratic State Committee under the leadership of Chairman Riley. Thousands of letters received at headquarters in advance assured the attendance of prominent men of the party. The national Democratic leaders recognized the event as an opportune time to sow the seeds of a big Democratic majority in November. So the very flower of the national bureau speakers were sent on to give their efforts to add to the enthusiasm of the big meeting.

In addition to the special train which left Boston there were special cars from Methuen, and from various other points along the New Hampshire line. Every delegation was organized to cheer its best, with cheer leaders and song leaders.

Champ Clark and Governor Foss went to the Lake from Boston together. The speaker, returning from Maine, called upon the Governor at the State House, and they immediately planned to run up in the Governor's automobile.

Mayor Fitzgerald made a flying trip to the lake from Vermont, where he is on a speaking tour in an effort to swing the State for Harland B. Howe at the coming State election.

Louis D. Brandeis' presence at the picnic was the result of his recent announcement that he would favor Governor Wilson for President. Mr. Brandeis was expected to make one of the principal speeches and ranked as an attraction second to none of those scheduled.

Society Food Fad: Scrambled Eggs and Fishballs at 12 G. M.

NEWPORT, Aug. 31.—Scrambled eggs and fishballs at midnight is the newest society fad, introduced last night by pretty Miss Marguerite Caperton, only daughter of Captain and Mrs. William B. Caperton, at the training station.

Mrs. Caperton gave a dance for the younger set, and at midnight the guests enjoyed a chafing dish spread. A Japanese served the dishes, which the clever dancer, swimmer and all-round athlete had prepared with her own hands.

Now they call Miss Caperton inventor of the best midnight menu for dances.

ACCIDENTS BRING REVERE AUTO BAN

Following the long train of auto accidents which have occurred on the Revere Boulevard, the Metropolitan Park Commissioners have issued an order closing the boulevard from 1 to 11 p. m. for eight days, beginning Sunday. No vehicles of any kind will be allowed on the driveway between Eliot Circle and Revere street.

This action was precipitated when Catherine Shea, five years old, of No. 23 Smith street, Roxbury, was knocked down and bruised by an automobile driven by Charles Bennett of Lynn, a chauffeur employed by Mrs. Emily W. Currier of No. 32 Deer Cove street, Lynn.

JAILS FATHER OF 14 FOR NON-SUPPORT

James Lee, No. 265 West Fourth street, father of fourteen children, including two sets of twins, seven of the children now living, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Fallon in the South Boston District Court on charges of non-support and drunkenness. His wife, Mary, testified that he had not done anything to support her for thirteen years. She declared she had to get up about 2:30 every morning and go out taking care of offices in town to support her family.

M'HARG QUITS T. R. TO VOTE FOR TAFT

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Ormsby McHarg, who had charge of the Roosevelt contests at the Chicago convention, will cast his presidential vote for President Taft. Mr. McHarg says: "I have always been a Republican and always shall be one." Colonel William L. Ward is another Progressive chieftain who has broken away from the new party.

KEYES, ROOSEVELT'S DOUBLE, IS ATTACHED

John M. Keyes of Concord, famous as Roosevelt's double, has been attached at the registry of deeds, East Cambridge, for $900 in three actions of contract brought for $300 each by the Eastern Electric Lamp Company of Boston, the Dennison Manufacturing Company of Framingham and Joseph Breck & Sons Corporation of Boston.

WOMAN ASKS LAW TO END SUFFERINGS BY MERCIFUL DEATH

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Mrs. Sarah Harris, who has been a sufferer from paralysis for three years, from her bed at the Audubon Sanitarium, has dictated an appeal for an act of the Legislature, making it possible for doctors to end her sufferings by a merciful death. She is thirty-three years old.

For three years Mrs. Harris has not been able to move hand or foot. She has control only over the muscles of her head. There is no hope that she will ever improve. Her condition is caused by a spinal malady which keeps her constantly in intense pain. The disease has spared her reason, but this only makes life harder for her.

KANSAS MOOSE FIGHT TO SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The fight between the Taft and Roosevelt forces over the presidential electors from Kansas has been transferred officially from the courts of that State to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Patients Return to Meals and Strike Is Declared Off

RUTLAND, Aug. 31.—The first strike that has ever occurred among the patients of an institution in this State, which happened at the Rutland State sanitarium at breakfast time yesterday morning, has been called off by the fifty male patients who "struck" because they did not get what they believed they should have for their morning meal.

Dr. P. C. Bartlett, the superintendent says the patients who left the table thought the meal was not what it ought to be, and that they wished to discuss the matter with him.

The doctor says the patients were all at the table for their noonday meal, and have continued to appear at the table since.

"The dietary for the patients," said Dr. Bartlett, "is made up a week ahead. The patients who left the table simply did so because they didn't think the meal agreed with their ideas. A few of them came to me and we discussed the matter."

12,000 HAIL LYNN PENSION SCHEME

FEATURES OF PENSION LAW.

All male employes may retire at age of seventy if they have been with the company twenty years.

Pension to be 1 per cent. of average weekly wage for preceeding ten years, plus the number of years of service, but shall not exceed $125 a month.

Women may retire five years earlier than men.

Nearly 1,000 men and women come under provisions of pension plan.

General Manager Walter C. Fish of Lynn Works one of prime movers of scheme.

The 12,000 employes of the great General Electric Company plant at Lynn today received the news of the company's pension plan with hearty appreciation.

Nearly 1,000 men and women come under the provision of the plan and it is probable some of them will take advantage of the offering of the company and retire. It is estimated that about 900 Lynn people have been in the company's employ the twenty years required.

MELLEN TO SELL STEAMER LINE

President Mellen proposes to surrender his controlling fifty-one per cent. of the stock of the Merchants & Miners' Transportation Company, now held by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in order that the M. & M. vessels can use the Panama Canal, according to dispatches today from Baltimore.

The stock is to be exchanged at par for 4½ per cent. bonds of the steamship line. The stock pays only 3½ per cent.

The Merchants & Miners' is a Maryland corporation operating a line of coastwise steamers between Boston and Providence and Norfolk, Va., and Baltimore.

The canal law, recently passed, forbids railroad-owned vessels from passing through the isthmus waterway or from competing for a mail-carrying contract.

BROCKTON, Aug. 31.—Nearly dead from starvation, a woman named Starr, said to be more than eighty years old, was taken from a shanty on South Skinner street and sent to the city home.

WOMEN HYSTERICAL ON DISABLED VESSEL

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 31.—With her engines broken down, the steamer Atlantic City, plying between New York and this city, lies disabled, with seventy-three passengers on board, half a mile off Absecom Inlet. Life-savers said the vessel was in no danger and that repairs were being made on board. There were 147 passengers on board when the vessel left Atlantic City for New York, but all but seventy-three insisted on being taken ashore after the machinery broke down last night. Many of the women became hysterical.

REVEAL ROMANCE OF MANSFIELD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—To those familiar with the romance of the late Richard Mansfield, the actor, saddened thoughts of whispered prayers and softly chiming convent bells came when this simple memorial made its annual appearance in a local newspaper:

IN MEMORIAM.

MANSFIELD—Passed from this life on Aug. 30, 1907, Richard Mansfield.

"We pass; the path that each man trod
Is dim; or will be dim, with words;
What fame is left for human deeds
In endless age? It rests with God."

Through the mails it comes unobtrusively every year on the anniversary of the great actor's death. It recalls a story more moving perhaps than Mansfield ever presented on the stage.

When Richard Mansfield was in his first great New York success he met a young girl, the beautiful daughter of an old Maryland family. She was visiting her aunt. It was her first visit to New York.

Mansfield fell in love with her at sight. She had been thrilled already by his acting, and it was not long before she admitted that this affection was returned. Night after night she sat in the playhouse and drank in his every word. And he forgot the people, who crowded into the theatre, and played only to her.

When the parents of the girl learned of her love they forbade the marriage. They held the stage in abhorrence and regarded Mansfield as a mountebank. But the girl pleaded so earnestly and Mansfield paid his court so manfully that they finally consented if Mansfield would leave the stage.

Mansfield was reaching the height of his career. He had much to give up. Because of the faith in his work he hesitated. He talked it over long and seriously with his sweetheart.

She was an uncommon girl. Because she realized that he possessed genius, the like of which had seldom been displayed, she hid her pain and gave him up, urging him to follow his profession. Sadly they parted.

The girl went on a journey, and on her return she entered a convent in Washington. She never saw Mansfield again.

Her identity is hidden behind the name given her by the church, and only the church authorities know which of the sweet-faced nuns carries this grief in her heart. All the world hears—all the world will probably ever hear—of this never-dying love is the echo revived by the little memorial which comes, unsigned, to a newspaper every year.

When the great actor met his sweetheart in New York she wore a cluster of white roses in her hair. In the years that followed their separation from time to time there was sent to the cloistered nun a basket of glorious white roses. In the convent she became known as the "Sister of the Roses."

There was no name—no card—on these flowers. But invariably, when she received them, the dark-robed sister retired to her cell, and there in her seclusion added significance was given to the plural pronoun in the whispered prayer:

"Lord, have pity on us."

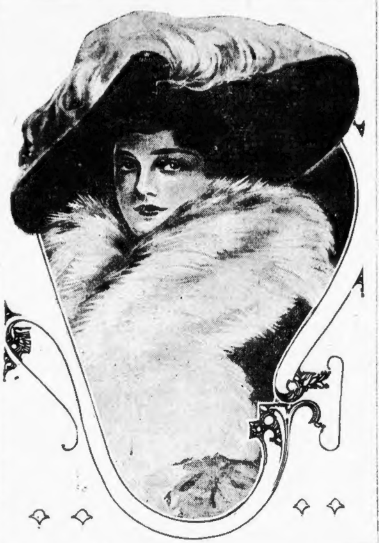
Mrs. Hutt Is Denied Divorce

◆ ◆ ◆

"Venus Bride's" Plea Refused

PORTRAIT OF MRS. HUTT, DRAWN BY HER HUSBAND.



Beauty's Lawyers Plan to Introduce New Evidence and Push Fight at Later Hearing.

RENO, Nev., Aug. 31.—Judge French refused to grant Mrs. Edna G. Hutt a divorce from Henry Hutt, the New York artist, and declared that the charge of wilful desertion against Hutt was not substantiated. Mrs. Hutt's attorney asked that a date be set when he might introduce further evidence, and Judge French set September 16 as the time for taking of further depositions in New York.

Mrs. Hutt, wearing a dark satin gown, took the stand. She testified her husband had stayed away nights from their apartments in New York, and told how they had quarrelled. Finally, she said, she became in poor health and her doctor recommended that she go to the seaside.

She went to Narragansett Pier on July 2, 1910, and with the full consent of her husband, she asserted. Hutt went to their New York apartments and took everything out of them. When she came back from Narragansett Pier, she said, she found her apartments bare and her husband gone.

Had Not Seen Husband.

Mrs. Hutt testified she was compelled to go to her aunt's. She declared she had been a dutiful wife, and upon questions from Judge French stated she had not seen her husband after her return from the seaside, and that she had not rung him up by telephone.

Hutt told her attorneys that he wanted nothing further to do with her, Mrs. Hutt said. There was no possibility of a reconciliation; she felt sure.

Mrs. Hutt denied there had been any agreement to separate permanently. She described a number of quarrels with her husband which, she asserted, made her nervous and affected her young son.

Likened to Venus de Milo.

Mrs. Hutt, whose husband once declared her more beautiful than the Venus de Milo, won a suit for separation a year ago. An allowance of $150 a month alimony was made to her. She came here in January last and has been living with Mrs. Harry Mechling, daughter of Mirabeau L. Towns of New York. Previous to her marriage Mrs. Hutt was Edna Garfield Della Torre. She was noted for her beauty as an artist's model and has posed for Charles Dana Gibson, A. B. Wenzel and other artists. The romance that ended in her marriage began when she posed for Hutt.

Hutt declared that his wife had been cruel to him and that she had ceased to be an inspiration for his work.

Youthful Couple in Milkmaid Romance Found in Hartford

Miss Ethel Reid and Harold McIntyre, the youthful heroine and hero in Wakefield's "milkmaid" romance, are with friends in Hartford, Ct., today, according to a long-distance telephone message Ethel sent to her mother, Mrs. Charles Bayard of No. 89 Empire street, Lynn. The message was:

"Harold and I are in Hartford with friends. We are not married yet, but will be soon. Am seeing the sights and having a lovely time. Don't worry."

The girl did not call her mother to the telephone, but gave the message to a neighbor of Mrs. Bayard, with the request that it be delivered to her mother. Ethel knew well that, if her mother got in actual communication with her, she would not get away so easily.

Mrs. Bayard, who has been worried ever since the news of Ethel's and Harold's departure from Ethel's aunt's home in Wakefield became known, is still distressed about her daughter. She wishes she knew just where Ethel is, and about her wedding plans, and why she went away down into Connecticut instead of being married at home.

"BIG LEM" SAYS HE'S DEAD BROKE

John A. Strausneider, alias "Big Lem," who has been confined in the Charles Street Jail in default of $15,000 bonds on a civil action brought by Samuel H. Butters, following his acquittal on a wire-tapping charge brought by Butters, today took the poor debtor's oath.

He is wanted in Chicago at once to answer to a wire-tapping charge there. An Alabama man brings the charge. Big Lem will fight extradition and appeal to Governor Foss. He will have a hearing Wednesday.

Big Lem was arrested following a charge brought by Butters that he was robbed of $7,500 by Big Lem in a wire tapping scheme at Providence. He was found not guilty, but as he was leaving the courtroom he was rearrested on a civil action brought by Butters, who is an Atlantic avenue junk dealer. He was unable to raise the $15,000 bail demanded and remanded to jail.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON IN JAIL AS "MASHER"

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Harold F. Hoops, son of W. H. Hoops, a millionaire manufacturer, is in the House of Correction to serve fifty days for "mashing." Hoops was speeding down Michigan avenue when he spied pretty Margaret Baldwin, a stenographer. He stopped his car and invited her to ride, and followed her until a policeman arrested him.

OUT $800, SAYS POLICE HELPED

Edward C. Callicutt, a cousin of Tris Speaker, and an electrician-sergeant on the non-commissioned staff of the Coast Artillery Corps at Fort Revere, will bring before Police Commissioner O'Meara his charges that he was robbed of $800, and that the policeman to whom he appealed arrested him, a companion, and the man whom he accused. At police station, he declares, he was threatened with imprisonment if he persisted in his accusations.

Callicutt will push an investigation, and is backed by his superior officers, since his record in the service is a clean one. His story is substantially as follows:

"I had been on a month's furlough to my home in Blooming Grove, Tex. I returned to Fort Revere yesterday with more than $700, including one $500 bill. I got the pay due me and when I came to Boston I had nearly $800 in my pocket.

"Planned to Deposit Money."

"I was going to deposit my money in a bank, but the bank was closed. I was next going to engage a cook for the post establishment and later to visit my cousin, Tris Speaker.

"When I reached the city I fell in with Charles Mantzbarger of the 151st Company, C. A. C., of Fort Andrews and played a game of pool. While I was playing Mantzbarger referred to the money I had.

"A hanger-on in the pool room took interest in this remark.

"We finally went to an employment office, but did not get a cook. As we stepped in the street a young man, possibly the one who was in the poolroom, stepped up and suggested that we visit another employment office. He volunteered to show the way.

"He took us into a building on Washington street, near Pleasant street, and a cook was hired. I paid seventy-five cents to the keeper of the office and gave the cook twenty-five cents for carfare.

"Somebody said something about buying a drink. We hurried to get out of the place. The man who had showed us about wanted a drink, so we went into a saloon and bought him one and gave him some change for his trouble. Again my large roll was seen.

"I had asked the bartender to call a taxicab. I stepped to the door to ascertain if one standing there was mine and reached into my hip pocket to see if the money was there. When I found the pocket empty, I shouted to Comrade Mantzbarger, 'Charlie, my money is gone.'

"Mantzbarger replied, 'That fellow there, who has been with us, has got it; grab him.'

"The man started to run, but Mantzbarger caught him with a swing on the eye, and he dropped to the street. Mantzbarger fell upon him and held him. Instantly two other men pitched into Mantzbarger and I pulled them away, all the while crying, 'He has robbed me. He has got my money. Get a policeman.'

"A patrolman came and grabbed us all. I told the policeman that the fellow had stolen my $800 and asked him to search all three of us. A crowd gathered about, and the stranger had every opportunity to pass the stolen wallet and its contents to a friend because the policeman made no effort to prevent him.

"We were taken to Station 4 and I told my story. I was thrown into a cell with Mantzbarger, charged with being drunk.

"Not Allowed to Telephone."

"I asked for the privilege of telephoning friends, but I was refused. The man accused of stealing the $800 was put in an adjoining cell, and when he asked to telephone to '——— Sullivan,' the policemen jumped about to serve him as promptly as if he were a superior in the house.

"A man in civilian's dress came to the cell and took me out and tried to persuade me that I had not been robbed and also told me that if I would admit I had lost $50 or $60 and not $700, I might be released, but if I persisted that I had been robbed of $700 I might be kept locked up a week.

"Mantzbarger said the same man took him out of the cell and told him the same thing. Mantzbarger said he saw the money and told the man so.

"The man told us that we might be released promptly if we would promise not to appear in court against the prisoner. He also told us we had no evidence against the man.

"We were sent to the City Prison and later released.

"My only hope of recovering any part of my lost money is in the fact that the thief is likely to have difficulty in spending the $500 banknote."

"WILLOW PLUME" IN NON-SUPPORT CASE

POLICE HAVE TO PAY BLACKMAIL

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The startling assertion was made today by persons familiar with underworld conditions that certain high officials of the police department and others who are alleged to have exacted protection tribute are themselves being compelled to pay heavy tolls to keep from District Attorney Whitman information that would be disastrous to them.

Men who for years have been paying graft are now said to be collecting it in big sums as the price of their silence. Some of them are said to have demanded regular incomes until the storm blows over, and the gossip of the underworld is that they are receiving it.

Counsel for Lieutenant Charles A. Becker, the official indicted for Herman Rosenthal's murder, will attempt to delay Becker's trial as long as possible. If they can't get a postponement when Mr. Whitman asks to have a date for the trial set next week, it is planned to make request for a change of venue because of the state of public feeling.

Mr. Whitman hopes to have Becker's trial start September 11. John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for Becker, says that before he will permit the case to go to trial at such an early date he will expect to have the trial heard in some court outside of New York County.

It became known today to what use District Attorney Whitman is putting the list of gambling house recently turned over to him by Police Commissioner Waldo. The list shows the time of raids, and it is said Mr. Whitman's assistants have discovered significant coincidences between the raids and increases in bank deposits of certain police officials whose names have been mentioned in connection with graft. The prosecution has worked up its complete case against Becker, according to a telegram received from Manchester, Vt., where the District Attorney has gone for the week-end.

Miss Sears Among '3 Constant Couples' at 'Honeymoon House'

NEWPORT, Aug. 31.—The three "constant couples" are adding much interest to Newport life this season. They are Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston and Harold Sterling Vanderbilt, whom she addresses as "Hello, Mike;" Herman Oelrichs and Margaret Andrews; and Inez Milholland, the militant suffragette, and Maurice Roche, son of Mrs. Frances Roche, and one of the handsomest bachelors here.

They are seen together almost all the time and are attentive to a marked degree, yet no engagements are announced. Miss Sears' and Mr. Vanderbilt's affair remains reported and yet practically undenied. Newport insists they are engaged.

Play "Dead March" in Sunday Service for General Booth

Every Salvation corps in the world will hear played tomorrow the "Dead March" at the memorial services for General Booth. In Boston, the Salvation army parade, 500 strong, will start from the Palace on West Brookline street at 1:30 p. m. It will pass down Washington street to Tremont street to Tremont Temple. From Boylston street to the Temple the "Dead March" will be played.

At the Temple addresses will be made by Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald, Rev. Dr. MacArthur, president of the Baptist World Alliance, and others.

The different corps of the army will carry American flags and Salvation Army banners. These will be all draped in white. The "lassies" of the army will carry white ribbons.

Colonel Adam Gifford and Mrs. Gifford will lead the procession. Two bands, composed of sixty-three players, the Cambridge band and People's Palace band, will furnish the music.

During the playing of the "Dead March," every head will be uncovered among the men. While it is proposed to make the occasion one of sorrow for the lamented founder, the Salvation Army members will also signify that his death is one of triumph. At the Palace in the evening at 8 o'clock there will be a mass meeting.

SPEEDING MADE EMPEROR ILL

BERLIN, Aug. 31.—The return of Kaiser Wilhelm from Cassel brings the real explanation for his recent illness which so alarmed the empire. His Majesty is a confirmed automobile "scorcher" and caught cold, owing to his persistent habit of speeding in open cars, without regard to the chilly air. The constant, forced draught, familiar to every automobolist, caused that plebian ailment known as a "bad cold." The liability of the Emperor to throat trouble and his well-known weakness in one ear made physicians unusually vigilant. The precautions taken and the fact that His Majesty was hoarse gave rise to the old rumors of cancer of the throat or ear.

The Emperor is much better now. He is even stouter, though that subject is one to be handled delicately in court circles.

Coincident with the general congratulations upon His Majesty's recovery is considerable criticism of his careless exposure of himself on auto trips. It is understood that the physicians have read a medical "riot act" to their royal patient, warning him that he cannot risk his health like a commoner.

$500 Reward
This is MISS AD TAKER Who Will Be At Revere Beach Tomorrow.
FOR THE CAPTURE
—OF—
"The Lady With the Green Parasol"
At Revere Beach, Sunday . . $200
At Paragon Park, Sunday . . $150
At White City, Monday . . . $150

Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN will be at the following places tomorrow between the hours of 2 and 5 P. M:

AT REVERE BEACH she will stroll along the sidewalk of the shopping and amusement side of the boulevard. She will not cross the drive nor be on the sands nor on the beach side of the boulevard at any time; you cannot capture her there. You must get her on the sidewalk that starts at Condit's and runs along the amusement places to Revere street. Remember this, she will not cross the automobile drive.

AT NANTASKET she will be on the board walk from the Roller Coaster through to the end of the Bath House, or on the sidewalk from Paragon Park to the entrance to the Boat Landing. She will not be on the drive, Nantasket avenue, nor can she be captured there. If she is not captured before 3 P. M. she will enter Paragon Park at that hour (and not before) and remain there until 5 P. M., unless captured before 5 P. M. After 3 P. M. she can be captured only in Paragon Park.

The person who identifies Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN must have in his or her hand, in plain sight, a copy of tomorrow's AMERICAN and shall say to her while she walks the streets or places mentioned, "You are Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN." The first man, woman or child who identifies her at Revere, as directed, will receive a Boston AMERICAN order for $100 in gold; the same amount on the same conditions will be awarded at Nantasket.

The photograph of Miss Ad Taker at Revere Beach is printed on this page. She will carry a Green Parasol.

Because of the ease with which Miss Ad Taker could be captured at Nantasket her picture will not be printed and you will have to find her from this description: she is 16 years old; she weighs about 100 pounds; she has light hair and blue eyes and she will carry a Green Parasol.

In addition to the $100 prizes, $150 more will be awarded in these proportions: $100 at Revere Beach, $50 at Nantasket.

To receive one of these added prizes you must have in your possession a receipt for a Boston AMERICAN want ad for any day this week or for tomorrow. Remember, two big prizes in each place. You can win them both.

Want Ad receipts may be obtained at the AMERICAN office, or at any want ad agency or by mail. If you have a room to let, a house or apartment to rent, if you want boarders, if you need a situation, if you want to sell or trade a sewing machine or bicycle, if you want to buy or sell a dog or cat, you can do it through the Want Ads of the Boston AMERICAN.

One of these numerous headings under which Want Ads are published must interest you. Just insert a small ad and you will get a receipt which will entitle you to the additional cash prize if your observation is keen enough to capture Miss Ad Taker.

SPECIAL

Miss Ad Taker, of the Boston AMERICAN, the Lady with the Green Parasol, will be in the White City, Worcester, Labor Day, from 2 to 5 P. M.

Because of the small size of the park, and the ease with which she might be captured on her photograph, no picture of her is published.

You will have to find her from the parasol and this description:

She is twenty-two years old; weighs one hundred pounds; has dark eyes and dark hair, and she carries THE GREEN PARASOL. To secure the reward, you must approach her with a copy of tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN, in plain sight, and say to her, inside of the White City: "You are Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN." The first man, woman or child who identifies her as directed will receive a Boston AMERICAN order for one hundred dollars in gold.

If you have in your possession a receipt for a Boston AMERICAN want ad for any day of this week or for tomorrow, you will be paid fifty dollars extra. Remember, SAVE YOUR SUNDAY AMERICAN. It may be worth cash to you at the White City, Worcester, Labor Day.

RILEY'S COLUMN

"HAVE you bought Walter Johnson yet?" says everybody to Jimmy McAleer.

"Ho-ho-ho-hee-hee-hee," says Jimmy McAleer, just like Little Jeff does when he puts one over on Mutt.

"Did you offer $50,000 in real money for Walter Johnson?" asks everybody.

"Har-har-har—ho-ho-ho," says Jimmy McAleer.

Since McAleer laughs at anything and everything just now, everybody imagines that it's just a habit. But it isn't. McAleer is actually laughing at the $50,000 Johnson story.

* * *

THERE is no doubt that McAleer would pay $50,000 for the "Terrible Swede." Anybody would. The writer would, for instance. It would ALMOST break him, but he would. If the writer succeeded in making the purchase, he would mortgage Johnson and, with the proceeds, buy eight more players to work with Johnson. Then he would mortgage the eight more players and buy a franchise. Then he would mortgage the franchise and buy a ball park. Then he would mortgage the ball park and spend the money in advertising. Then he would stand at the gate and take in coin. Then he would buy a yacht. Then he would sail away far off and sleep and dream in peace for ye-ahs and ye-ahs. Then he would WAKE UP!

* * *

THAT'S what they all say. And that's what they'll all do. Imagine what would happen if Boston bought or Washington sold Walter Johnson, for $50,000 or for $500,000. Boston is leading the American League race by ten games. Washington is second. Boston has thirty-one more games to play. Washington has twenty-nine. It's a race. Boston must win a lot of ball games to capture the pennant. Washington must win a lot more. On paper, Washington still has a chance. The pennant is not yet won. It's a contest. As a contest, it draws crowds to the box offices. All America is reading the papers. All America is baseball mad. Now, the Washington team is Walter Johnson, and Walter Johnson IS Washington. If Boston bought Walter Johnson, Boston would buy Washington. If the leading team in the league bought the second team in the race, what would become of the contest? What would become of the American League? What would become of baseball?

* * *

NO! Jimmy McAleer, president of the Red Sox, is not committing suicide just now. Neither is Clark Griffith, manager of the Senators. Neither is Ban Johnson, president of the American League. This is the reason why such a sale would be impossible. Major league baseball exists by virtue of the longing of the people for wholesome entertainment and excitement. There is a nation-wide interest in the two pennant races and in the coming world's series, which interest is nearing its climax. Everybody in America is interested in baseball. Every major and minor league team in the country is reaping the profits that accrue from this interest. Fully $150,000 will flow into the Fenway Park box office during the present home stay alone. Next year is another year. After that there are more large, juicy, golden years to come.

* * *

NOW, imagine what would become of baseball now and henceforth if, at this stage of the American League race, the leading team were to buy out the chances of the second team!

* * *

QUITE likely McAleer did offer $50,000 for Johnson, and quite likely McAleer would pay $50,000 or more for Johnson and, if he did, he would make a good bargain for himself and for Boston—at first sight. But if Griffith sold Johnson for $50,000, or any other price, he would have to quit Washington after dark. And every league magnate in the country would raise such a howl of protest that McAleer would likely be compelled to restore Johnson to the Senators. The American League would not stand for it.

* * *

ANY trade of stars that benefits a team higher up at the expense of a team lower down should be discountenanced by the major leagues. They should encourage the trading of players which would strengthen teams lower down at the expense of teams higher up. If they did the latter, the Giants, Cubs and Pirates would lose their perennial mortgage on the National League pennant, and the whole National League, including the Giants, Cubs and Pirates, would be benefited. This year's UNUSUAL finish has helped the entire American League, and this year's CUSTOMARY finish has NOT helped the National League.

MEN'S Complaints CURED

EXPERIENCE, PRACTICE, KNOWLEDGE

The three essentials to our success—the three positive, safe and secure means we possess to cure our patients. Are these not the best credentials? Do you want a more positive guarantee to cure? Do you need a surer pledge of good faith?

Sixty-four years' continuous practice. We cure after others fail. All acute and chronic diseases and weaknesses of all kinds and from whatever cause arising in young, middle aged and old men, nervous and physical debility, exhausted vitality, wasting, vital weakness from the effects of youthful errors and excesses, cured and full vigor restored, melancholia, weak back, rheumatic complaints, catarrh, constipation and indigestion. Blood poison, causing ulcers and sores on the body; ulcerated sore throat, eczema, carefully and scientifically treated. Urinary diseases, bladder and kidney complaints, cured quickly and privately. Office especially equipped with modern appliances for the cure of chronic and difficult cases. No loss of time. A written guarantee given to cure curable cases for stipulated fee, payable as patient is able. Advice free. Our medical book should be read by every man. Sent sealed by mail, free, with question sheet. Hours: Daily 9 to 8, Sunday 10 to 1.

CHANCE TO SEE ATHLETICS FREE

Today is positively the last chance of the season to see the World's Champion Athletics at the Fenway Park. Why not get a free grandstand seat to the game?

The AMERICAN is offering the "fans" this opportunity. Coupons are now being distributed by the newsboys and newsdealers bearing a big red cross. If one of these coupons has a corresponding number to one of those printed on the sport pages each day, it entitles the holder to a free grandstand seat.

Remember, one hundred numbers are printed each day—fifty in the early editions and fifty brand new ones in the later editions. Bring your winning coupons to the AMERICAN Promotion Department, No. 5 Winthrop square, and you will be rewarded with a grandstand admission.

Sullivan Takes Swat at English Critics

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—James E. Sullivan, the United States Commissioner at the Olympic games, has issued a statement, nearly 2,000 words in length, refuting charges against the American Olympic athletes. Mr. Sullivan's retort was prompted particularly by a letter written by an English spectator of the games, published in the London Times, charging that American runners were guilty of "pocketing" and "elbowing" and "beating the pistol" at Stockholm.

From this and similar letters which have appeared in the London press, Mr. Sullivan declared that a reader was forced to the conclusion that English sportsmanship "is of a very low order if it is represented by the writers of such articles."

Mr. Sullivan took up specifically each charge, branded each as a falsehood and an insult to every man on the American team, and said that it was a great satisfaction to the Americans to know that there was a mass of authentic data to refute the charges which are being circulated in England without being dignified by either a signature or a proof.

"Farming" System Dealt Severe Blow

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 31.—The National Baseball Commission has announced an interpretation of the new National Agreement which will doubtless strike a body blow to the "farming" system of major league ball clubs.

The Triumvrate puts definite restrictions on the release of players during the drafting season.

Hereafter a player released to the minors under optional agreement between August 15 and the close of the current year will be subject to the drafting privileges of all major leagues and all minor leagues of higher classification than the one in whose service he is after August 26.

A player drafted by a major league club cannot be released at any time within a year of his selection under a straight or an optional agreement until all the clubs of all the leagues of higher classification than the one to which he is assigned have waived claim.

Long Distance Swim For Title in Basin

The amateur long-distance swimming championship of New England will be decided in the Charles River this afternoon. The race, 2½ miles in length, has attracted about eighty of the best swimmers in New England and will be held under the auspices of the Municipal A. A.

Among swimmers who have entered are: Henry F. Sullivan of Lowell, who recently swam to Boston Light; George R. Meehan of the Brookline Swimming Club, who forced Sam Richards to a record of 5h. 15m. to Boston Light, but who just failed to reach the goal himself; Edward Duffy, Brooklyn Gym.; Claude Boudreau, East Boston Swimming Club; Louis Badaracco and James Santosuosso, Boston; Herbert D. Holm and Win Snow, Brookline Swimming Club; Ben James, Brookline; Joe O'Connor, Cambridge; George Doherty, Charlestown; William Donegan, South Boston; Harold Browne, Revere; Dr. Addison P. Beardsley, Roxbury; Oscar Blomquist, Somerville; Thurston A. Roenbeck, 117th Co., C. A. C., Rhode Island; P. E. Loughlin, Wakefield; C. Cooke, Quincy; Harvey Hedden and Donald Corbett, Brighton; Charles F. Connell and William Mahoney, Dorchester; Louis Schwartz, Salem.

Wiley Defends Title at Revere Oval Tonight

After a hard luck season George Wiley of Syracuse lost his hoodoo and is now the premier pacefollower of the world.

Wiley will have to look sharp to his honors for Elmer Collins of Lynn and James F. Moran of Chelsea are sore over the honors captured by the Syracuse boy.

In company with Menus Bedell and Julius Rudolphe they will try it tonight in the hour race and if not successful will take another fall out of him on the afternoon of Labor Day at Revere when the fifty-mile motor paced race will be ridden.

On that occasion Clarence Carman will be substituted for Menus Bedell. Carman was shut out in the championship heats through accident and pleaded with Butler to give him a chance against Wiley over the long road.

Roxbury All-Stars to Play at Wellfleet

There promises to be some tall doings at Wellfleet on Labor Day as the Roxbury All-Stars will clash with the strong Wellfleet team in a double-header. The Highland team will leave for Wellfleet early tomorrow morning.

The team will be captained by Jimmy Lyons who has seen service with the Lincoln team. Lyons has gathered together a fast bunch of ball tossers. Johnny Pearie, who pitched for the Romar A. A. last season, will do the heavy work on the mound for the Roxbury boys while Charley Gebhardt will do the honors behind the bat. This is a rattling good battery and is sure to make things interesting for the Wellfleet club.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Richey Jasper of Boston stopped Bob Masse in the eighth round of their bout at the Queensboro A. C. last night. Masse was in a reclining position when the referee halted proceedings.

VOTE STANDING OUT TOMORROW

Watch for the new vote standing in the World's Series contest in Sunday's AMERICAN.

Sunday's list will be followed by another vote list on Tuesday and daily thereafter, if possible.

Just fourteen days more and the World's Series Contest for 1912 will be a thing of the past. That is to say, it will be for everyone except the twenty winners and, for them it will be very much a thing of the future, as they will have delightful trips to look forward to and at the end of each trip will see our own Red Sox batting it out for the world's championship.

So, fans, you are in the stretch now—make the most of every minute.

Men Will Come In Motor Cars

to the New Filene Automatic Bargain Basement Store for Men and Boys

¶ For this is not the usual so-called bargain store, where only cheap merchandise is sold.

¶ Men may come here and find, for example, $50 overcoats at $25, or $30 suits at $18, all depending upon what the cash markets have offered.

¶ Boys may find, for example, $20 overcoats at $12.50, or $15 suits at $8.75, just as the cash markets happen to wag.

¶ There are no rules here preventing the Automatic Bargain Basement staff from buying and selling higher quality clothes than the average to be found in our upstairs shops.

¶ The one rule is that all Basement merchandise must be offered at such low first prices that very little of it will be here long enough to suffer automatic price reductions.

¶ Get the point, Mr. Man?

¶ Well, then, get into your motor car and come and see us.

¶ Open in a few days!

STUNT FOR BALL PLAYERS.

Here is some stunt for a ball player. A chap who goes by the name of Forsythe of Dallas, Tex., was a pretty good southpaw pitcher until he decided he could play a better game on the first sack. With his decision to quit pitching he also abandoned throwing with his left arm. He is now a right-handed throwing first-sacker—so good that he is expected to make good in the big league next year.

BOOST FOR DERRICK.

The passing of Derrick to Baltimore may mean the making of the young Georgian. He has not had enough baseball with the Athletics to keep in good practice. His batting has been off for two years, but with regular work should mount again.

Sox Have Killed Mack's Chances in Flag Fight

By taking two straight games from the Athletics while the Senators won two straight from the New York Yankees, the Red Sox have effectually put the world's champions out of this year's pennant race altogether and placed them in a position where it will be most difficult for them even to rise again to second position.

The Sox are still ten games in front of Washington. They have thirty-one games yet to play, while the Senators have but twenty-nine. If Washington were to win every game from now on, the Red Sox could win twenty, lose eleven and still tie them. If the Senators win twenty-five and lose but four, the Red Sox could win sixteen and lose fifteen and tie them. If the Senators win two-thirds of their games, taking twenty and losing nine, the Red Sox need win but thirteen more to tie, and could therefore lose eighteen.

Stumbling Block for Senators.

The Red Sox are to play one more game here with the Athletics and will finish the season with three at Philadelphia. They have won twelve out of eighteen from the champions. The Senators, who have won but five from the Athletics and lost eleven to them, must play six more games with Mack's men.

The Red Sox and Senators have seven more games between them.

These series of the three leaders are of chief interest and of the greatest importance, because the other teams are so far behind and are so comparatively helpless before the leading trio that they are only minor factors in the contest.

Based on what they have done and are doing right now, the Red Sox should take three of the remaining games from the Athletics, while the Senators should find a stumbling block in Mack's champions. These same Mackmen will meet the Senators in three games in Washington next Monday and Tuesday, while the Red Sox are playing the New York Yankees.

The Sox have beaten the Yankees fourteen games in fifteen, while the Senators have defeated the Athletics five games in sixteen, so "fans" can judge easily for themselves what chance the Senators have to make any progress against the Red Sox before the two leaders clash in the great Sox-Senators four games series at Fenway Park beginning next Wednesday.

It is probable that when the Eastern teams start on their last Western trip a week from tonight, the Red Sox will have a greater lead over the Senators than they have now.

Incidentally, the Red Sox have only nine more games to play at home this season. Today they finish with the Athletics, next week they entertain the Senators for four games and September 24, 25 and 26 they will meet the Yankees in a four-games series at Fenway Park. This last series will come at the end of the Western tour and will precede the wind-up of the season, when the Red Sox go to Washington for a great series and then play to a glorious finale at Philadelphia.

Cubs Crawl Up.

While the Cubs beat the Cardinals, 5 to 4, yesterday, the Giants fell before their old across-the-river enemies, the Dodgers, 7 to 5, and the New York lead in the National League has now narrowed down to a paltry four games. Still New York is in front and the Cubs will have to keep it up to catch them. The Red Sox's lead dwindled to five games in the last Western campaign, and Boston considered that sufficient. The difference is that the Red Sox have been marching onward all the time, while the Giants have gradually slipped away from the early season advantage.

Wolverton Picks Sox to Defeat the Giants

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Harry Wolverton, the hustling manager of the New York Americans, picks Boston and New York to fight it out for the world's championship this Fall, and when asked his opinion as to the winner, he replied unhesitatingly:

"I pick the Boston Red Sox to win the title."

Wolverton is not stuffed up with American League prejudice. He is a shrewd baseball man, backed with plenty of experience. He simply believes the Red Sox is the better team.

Bowling Chatter

The bowling bee is "a-buzzin'" once more. There is plenty of activity in the numerous alleys of Greater Boston these days. In another fortnight the season will be in full swing.

Many of the alley managers are making alterations. In several cases the alleys are being remodeled, as a busy year is expected.

Fred Hartford has severed his connection with the Old Colony alleys. Fred will hereafter be located at the Boston alleys on Arch street, where he will act in the capacity of manager. "Judge," as he is best known among the bowlers, has been with the Old Colony alleys for several years as assistant manager, and during his period of service there has made numerous friends, who join in offering him their heartiest congratulations in his new undertaking.

Don MacPhee, manager of the Casino alleys, is planning on putting a team in the City League this season. Don has several fast men in mind, including Billy Gregg and "Shifty" Graves, members of the Everett team of the Suburban League last season.

And by the way, Billy Gregg has not let up at the pins during the Summer. He is making them fly higher than ever and expects to be in good shape by the opening of the season.

Happy All Stars Play Rovers for Title Trophy

Al Rothenberg of the Hotel Comfort has arranged a game between the Columbia Spa Rovers and the Happy All Stars of the Hotel Comfort for a gold loving cup that P. J. Flynn, proprietor of the Columbia Spa, Revere, has furnished, and much interest is being shown.

The game will be played Monday at Curtis Park, Revere, at 10 o'clock. The whole town of Revere will turn out. The Happy All Stars have been staying at the Hotel Comfort all Summer. Tige Waldman will umpire.

With the Boxers

Hector McInnes is anxious to get a return bout for Eddie Murphy with Jack Britton. McInnes attributed the South Boston boy's defeat Tuesday night to illness. He said today:

"Eddie weighed in at 135 pounds at 3 o'clock all right. After weighing in he drank three glasses of ice water and then ate a hearty meal. Murphy was then seized with cramps and I called a doctor.

"The physician advised Murphy not to box and I was perfectly willing to let Britton have the forfeit which we had up, but Eddie refused to call the match off. He said the "fans" would call him a quitter.

"When he arrived at the club he was in wretched condition, but gamely went in and gave Britton a hard battle. I know that Eddie can beat Britton, but I suppose that Morgan will refuse to talk business."

Young McDonough of Manchester, N. H., clashes with Dave Deshler of Cambridge in a twelve-round bout at the New Bedford A. C., on Labor Day. The men have agreed to weigh in at 140 pounds ringside. The contest should be chock full of excitement, as both McDonough and Deshler are seasoned battlers.

There will be no show at the Pilgrim A. A. next week on account of Labor Day. Alex McLean has arranged agoodcardfor the following week.

McLean wishes to state that he has not made Packey McFarland an offer of $5,000 to meet Jack Britton at the Arena. Kind of looks as though Danny Morgan was trying to get some cheap notoriety for his protege when he gave out this story to the New York press.

Milwaukee dispatch says that Jimmy Clabby and Leo Houck have been signed to box in this city on September 17. The story is groundless, as Houck is booked for bouts up until the first of October. Clabby is anxious to get a date here, and Clabby has given his press agents the [illegible] get busy.

MACK CONCEDES FLAG TO RED SOX

By CONNIE MACK.

Manager of the Athletics.

"There is no use in denying that you have a great ball team here in Boston. It has been playing consistently all the season, and is doing so at the present time.

"I do not see how any other team in the league is going to head the Red Sox in the race.

"That does not mean, however, that we have quit. We will go down the line and play the string out to the limit of our ability. We are going to do the best we can."

STRONG ELEVEN AT ANNAPOLIS

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 31.—Thirty-four veterans from last season's victorious football eleven will be out to practice when Coaches Howard and Wheaton issue the call for the Middies to get busy with the pigskin this year. The best of prospects face the team, and Coach Howard says that the Navy eleven should have another successful season. Dalton is the only prominent member missing.

The following members of last season's football squad of the Naval Academy will try for the team again this season:

Backs—Austin, Nichols, Gilchrist, Leonard, Rodes, Alexander, Bates, Cook, Deets.

Lineman—Brown, Davis, Ralston, Cassard, Daugherty, Hall, Miller, J. H. Brown, Howe, Latimore, Ingram, Haylor, McReavey, Redman, Riche, Vaughan, Walker, Cook, Deroode, Overesch, Harrison, Kreimer, Mitchell, Smith and J. P. Brown.

All the members of the squad except Nichols and Ralston, who are detained on the fleet, passed through Annapolis, having been given early leave so that they may return to Annapolis for a week of preliminary practise before the regular session of the Academy opens.

EARLY GAMES FOR GIANTS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Secretary O'Brien of the New York National League Baseball Club announced that, beginning this afternoon all games at the Polo Grounds will start at 3:30 instead of 4 o'clock.

Jimmy Clabby a Thorn in Side of Mike Gibbons

By ED W. SMITH.

There is a thorn in the side of Mike Gibbons that the St. Paul man should pluck out before he can consider himself a champion. Said thorn is walking around and answering to the name of Jimmy Clabby.

Clabby would like nothing better than to get another shot at Mike. It cannot come too soon for him and he would make a lot of concessions to the St. Paul star in order to get him into a New York ring for a ten-round display—or something like that.

"Mike has achieved a wonderful reputation down East because of his speed and skill," Jimmy said recently.

"Well, I'm glad he's doing well and that they like him because that ought to make him a pretty good card with me. I've had Mike in the ring and he certainly showed speed against me. I never saw a man do so much backward running as he did that night in Malwaukee. And there is still talk in Milwaukee about what a rotten showing he made against me in that contest.

Can Make 150 Pounds.

"I don't know much about Mike's weight, but I'll do 150 pounds for him or anybody else. We boxed before at 145 and I weighed only 143 then. I've taken on some and I guess he has, too. But the fact that I can do 150 doesn't make me refuse to meet any and all middleweights. I'll go right up to 160 pounds with any of them.

"Why shouldn't Mike do the same, if he's the champion they would make out in New York? Boxing is a business and one must get his pile out of it, if he is to make a pile, while the going is good. Gibbons never can make another nickel out of the welterweight class. I'd starve if I had to depend upon men of my own weight. That's why I'm making concessions all the time. Why, in Australia, I boxed Dave Smith, who weighed 165 pounds, and any of the other big fellows that could draw a cent with me."

Wolgast also has some strong ideas on the matter of a real fighter giving away weight. It is Wolgast's idea that a real fighter need never fear to be a bit liberal in this respect. He cites his own case as a strong one in point, although Ad is not boastful about it. He says he always could make 128 pounds and fight strong, yet is willing right now to let a man like Packey McFarland come in at 135 pounds.

Says McGoorty Is Best.

And the bigger a man is—that is, the higher his class—the more he should be willing to give away, according to the Wolgast basis of reasoning.

In discussing the middleweight tangle of the day Clabby has an idea, and expresses it freely, that Eddie McGoorty is the best of the present day middleweights. He bases this belief on his opinion that Billy Papke is all through and never again can come back strongly with a first-class man. Clabby campaigned with Papke in Australia and claims to have good grounds for his belief.

Jimmy made money in Australia and likes it over there, because he attained great personal popularity. Jimmy got into business in Hammond as soon as he returned from his last trip to the under side of the world, and is one of the few of the present day fighters who is "salting" it down for future use. Mayhap he contracted the habit from his old side-kicker, the lightweight champion. At any rate, James has the habit.

Local Stars Training for Big A. A. U. Games

New England's track and field athletes are training hard for the A. A. U. junior and senior championships which will take place at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, on September 20 and 21. A large number of local stars are planning to make the trip to the Smoky City and they should make a good showing.

The New England athletes did well at the recent Olympic games at Stockholm and they should be able to hold their own with the best track and field men in the United States. This year's meet is attracting a great deal of attention and a record entry list is expected by the committee in charge of the games.

DAUBERT NOT AFTER JOB.

Jack Daubert says with loud emphasis that he is not fishing for Bill Dahlen's job, and states that he has not seen Charley Ebbets, except casually on the field, since the season started. Jake will probably manage the Superbas next year, despite his remarks.

MAY SELL TRACK AT READVILLE

When Lon McDonald won the last heat of the 2:09 trot with Major Wellington, the crowd made an early departure from Readville yesterday, and left what was, perhaps, the last grand circuit meeting which will be held at Readville.

There have been reports before that Readville would join the list of race track enclosures which have been sold for other purposes, but this time there seems to be more possibility than ever of the famous racing plant being in the last days of its sporting glory.

Passing on from Boston to Hartford, the grand circuit will open in the Nutmeg State with the $10,000 Charter Oak trotting stake as the big Labor Day feature. Monday's card will also have a free-for-all pace and The Juvenile, a $2,000 purse for two-year-old trotters to strive for.

On the second day program will be the Nutmeg 2:10 pace, with purse of $2,000. The Acorn, $2,000 purse for three-year-old trotters, and the Corinthian, a $2,000 event for 2:20 class trotters driven by amateurs. The third day card has the Capitol City 2:09 trot, with $2,000 purse, and the 2:15 trot, $1,000 purse. Programmed for the fourth day are the 2:07 pace, with $1,000 purse, The Championship free-for-all trot, with $2,500 at stake, and the $1,000 2:06 trot. For Friday, the fifth day card has three $1,000 races, the 2:10 and 2:24 trots and the 2:12 pace.

DIAMOND COMEDIANS.

Washington has made it plain that a team can't get along without a comedian or two. Germany Schaefer and Nick Altrock are winning games for Griffith with their eccentric comedy. It is now said that Connie Mack is angling for the services of Eddie Foy, while John McGraw has made an irresistible offer to George Cohan. Fred Clarke is sure he will win the pennant in 1913 if James T. Powers will only sign the liberal contract offered him, while Frank Chance declares that he needs only Lew Fields to get back in the championship class. At least one owner holds aloof.

How to Build a Fortune

NO. 8—SMALL BONDS

By THOMAS TAPPER

I.

IT has already been pointed out that safety of principal means comparatively small interest returns. The best types of savings banks pay from 3½ to 4 per cent. This means that, in States like New York and Massachusetts, the bank takes in the money of the public, invests it in ways prescribed by the law, and from its earnings pays the expenses of its business and its interest rate. Hence, the bank has to earn more than it pays its depositors.

Of late, much has been written about the thrift of the French people, of their custom of buying bonds in small denominations, and of the enormous amount of capital so invested. If the French people had the privilege of depositing money in savings banks as can be done in America, with safety and at 4 per cent, or thereabouts, they would probably not purchase so many bonds.

But the lesson of thrift exemplified by the French has led to the offering by certain bankers of bonds of small denomination, but principally of $100 each. These bonds pay from 3½ to 6 per cent. A few bonds are issued in denominations of $50, and some municipal bonds (generally yielding around 4 per cent.) can be bought in denominations as small as $10.

The question arises: Shall the wage-earner who has saved a hundred dollars that is earning 4 per cent. withdraw it from the bank and buy a bond that pays 5 per cent. or 6 per cent?

II.

Assuming the wage earner is slowly adding to his savings bank deposit, say a few dollars per month, and that he proposes to let his fund increase for a number of years, it seems wiser for him not to change his investment. Four per cent. compound interest, over a period of twenty years, is approximately equal to 6 per cent. simple interest over the same period.

If the wage earner would save the interest from a bond he could better this result. But while a bond is easy to buy, it offers some elements of trouble to one not accustomed to it.

To begin with a bond should not be kept in the house. Next, the wage earner who exchanges $100 for a 6 per cent. bond is, by the very nature of his exchange, increasing his risk.

If, however, he is desirous of being a bondholder, he should consult with the officers of the savings bank where he deposits his money, and be guided by their advice as to the safety of the bond he is offered. Better still, let him get the advice of a business man of integrity, also; particularly of one who has no interest in the bond. If they find no objection to it as a security, he may consider his principal safe. He has then only to cut off his coupons every six months and deposit them, as cash, in the savings bank.

The benefit to him of the bond over the savings bank investment is the amount of interest. Benjamin Franklin had a precept that, if the money saver follows, will ultimately make him well-to-do.

The precept reads thus:

Money makes money. But the money money makes, makes more money.

This means: Never spend your interest. Add it to your principle. It is surprising how rapidly interest accumulates to increase principal. This is the basis of the legitimate growth of savings. If the small bondholder can resist the temptation to spend the amount of the semi-annual coupons, he will become a true economist. But if he cannot resist spending what seems to come so easily he will not move forward very rapidly. If you buy a small bond, follow these rules:

1. Get the best advice possible as to its safety.
2. Do not spend the interest. Deposit it in the bank.
3. Keep the bond in a safe place. A safety deposit box, costing four or five dollars a year will be necessary. In this you can put all valuable papers you may have, and they will be perfectly safe.
4. The higher the interest rate on a bond, the more closely you must question the safety of the principal.
5. Select a tax-exempt bond if possible.
6. Once again—Don't waste the interest.

YOUNG WIFE SAVED FROM HOSPITAL

Tells How Sick She Was And What Saved Her From An Operation.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio.—"Three years ago I was married and went to housekeeping. I was not feeling well and could hardly drag myself along. I had such tired feelings, my back ached, my sides ached, I had bladder trouble awfully bad, and I could not eat or sleep. I had headaches, too, and became almost a nervous wreck. My doctor told me to go to a hospital. I did not like that idea very well, so, when I saw your advertisement in a paper, I wrote to you for advice, and have done as you told me. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and now I have my health.

"If sick and ailing women would only know enough to take your medicine, they would get relief."—Mrs. BENJ. H. STANSBERY, Route 6, Box 18, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

If you have mysterious pains, irregularity, backache, extreme nervousness, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait too long, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound now.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy and should give every one confidence.

HOW TO HAVE AND KEEP PRETTY EYES

MISS MARTHA WELLINGTON.

(One of Ziegfeld's beauties in "The Winsome Widow" Company.)

By MARTHA WELLINGTON

IF the new baby has nice eyes, the family predict that it will be a beauty, and a good pair of eyes is the only claim that many famous women have to real pulchritude.

With our subways, our electric light, our constant use of the eyes in reading magazines and papers everywhere and at all times, I often wonder whether our great-grandchildren won't be born with spectacles, and I rather think they will unless we learn how to avoid eye strain. When you think of what a tremendous amount of work is required of the eyes, and how wonderfully they respond, you feel that they are really deserving of better treatment than that which they get.

I am sure that the vast amount of electric light which we use is to some extent responsible for the gaunt and hollow eyes which even the younger society women cannot escape after a couple of seasons, for electric light is not only much harder on the eyes, but it is much more unbecoming than the soft glow of the lamps or candles of our forefathers.

On the other hand, of course, if it is properly focussed, it saves the sight, for the strain of seeing an object in a poor light is tremendous, and is one of the reasons why so many people have to wear glasses at a very early age.

Children begin at school to read and study by a poor light, for not all of the schools have adequate lighting as yet, but parents are even more at fault, for the child does its home work as best it can, and by any light that will serve, so that it gets the idea very early in life that the eye will stand for any kind of treatment.

A Test

If you want to know what a strain electric light is on the eyes, stand behind the footlights in the spotlight. That is the place which so many stage aspirants hope to attain, and most of them would be willing to sacrifice their good sight to get there.

I believe in taking care of my eyes, and if the time ever comes when the spotlight glows for me alone I shall be able to face it with strong eyes at least.

I have made up a lot of rules for myself, and I try to follow them as well as I can. In the first place, I never read in a rocking chair; the movement of the rocker requires a constant readjustment of the sight, and it is a strain on the eyes.

I never read in bed, either, even if the light falls straight on the book and not in my eyes, because this is one of the surest way of straining the sight.

I rest my eyes when traveling, and even in the cars I avoid reading if possible.

Of course, when one is up late at night the eyes invariably show it, and I try and relieve them by bathing them with a little salt and water. I always have an eye cup, which must be washed out thoroughly before it is used, as it should be absolutely clean. Into this cup I pour the salt water, which should be about as salty as tears, or the ocean. I hold the cup firmly to my eye so the water cannot escape, put by head back and open my eyes. This is not only very refreshing, but it cleans the eyes out, removes every particle of dust that may have gotten in them and is one of the best ways to keep the eyes bright and clear.

Sometimes when I am very tired and my eyes show it, as they always do at once, I get a basin of ice water with a little bit of perfume added to it. Then I take a small bit of the ice, wrap it in a piece of soft linen and rub the skin under the eye and just over it with the ice. You have to rub very quickly, and don't leave the ice too long in any one place. It is likely to be quite stinging. After you have done this for a little while, treating both eyes, rub on a little cream, or, better still, buttermilk if you can get it, and pinch the skin around the eyes until it becomes quite red. I think this treatment will take away those dark circles under the eyes, and will also relieve puffiness, which is so unpleasant and disfiguring.

Relieving the Strain

Sometimes when the eyes are very tired, you can make them feel better by pinching the muscles along the eyebrow; this seems to relieve the strain for some reason or other, and especially if you can get someone else to do it, is quite an excellent thing.

I never wear veils with great big dots or figures which interfere with the sight, because I think they are responsible for much of the eye trouble.

When I go automobiling or to the seashore, I wear big large colored goggles; they may be disfiguring, but I'd rather be disfigured with them for a few hours than suffer from the effects of wind and the stronger reflection of sunlight on the sand. I also carry a parasol lined with green, and try to keep my complexion in such shape that I can stand the green color. That is a great test you know. If you look well under a green parasol, or under a green awning through which the light is reflected, you don't have to worry about your skin, for few people come out of this trying ordeal without appearing to be frights of the first water.

And speaking of green, don't let anyone ever persuade you to wear anything of that shade when you are going on an ocean trip. I think people who are seasick ought to dress in pink, that is really the only becoming color for that woe-begone condition.

But, of course, if you travelled dressed in pink people would think you were crazy, whereas you were only trying to spare your fellow creatures the painful sight of the seasick person dressed in a garment of the same color.

For that reason I don't like green veils at the seashore, though I know they are the best for the eyes; gray and brown are almost equally good, and much more effective.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WHAT is the matter with you, my dear? sed Ma to Pa wen he caim hoam to the hotel the other nite when we were over in Noo York.

Oh, I thought you looked just a littel bit dizzy, sed Ma. Perhaps it was a vagary, Ma sed; a figment of my fancy, a child of my tired brain.

You mean a pig-ment, not a figment, sed Pa.

Doant stall, sed Ma; I mean jest what I sed, a fig-ment, & if you think that you are going to throw me off the track that way you are sadly mistook, sed Ma. What IS the matter with you?

Dearest wife, sed Pa, I newver thought for a minnit that I cud throw you off the track. Anybody that knows you, Pa sed, knows better than that. In sum previous age you must have been one of them Simon Legree's bludhounds.

Well, sed Ma, after you are thru with words perhaps you can tell me what maiks you look so dizzy.

Do I look dizzy, Bobbie? sed Pa.

Then I was between two (2) fires. I hated to tell Pa that he looked dizzy, beekaus it was only yesterday morning that he gave me a quarter, besides all the other munny that he has gave me. But I knew that Pa was dizzy, & I knew that Ma knew that Pa was dizzy, & I knew that Ma knew that I knew Pa was dizzy; so after a while I sed Yes, Pa, I am fraid that you are a littel bit dizzy.

How sharp-er than a serpent's tooth is a ungrateful child, sed Pa. Think of all the pashunt, honest endeavvor that I have spent in reering you rite, Bobbie. Every time that you wanted to buy a new text book, I slipped you the coin, didn't I, sed Pa. When yure clothes was gitting kind of shiny I always got yure new clothes for you, dident I? sed Pa.

Yes, I toald Pa. You did.

& when you wanted that five dollars to go out with the boy Scouts three weeks ago I kicked in with the five, dident I, sed Pa.

Yes, Pa, I toald him. I know all the kind things wich you have did for me, but you look a littel dizzy jest the saim. I hated to say it to Pa. I think it hurt me worse than it hurt him, & I toald him so. That is what he always says to me wen he is spanking me.

Now, then, sed Ma, WHAT MADE YOU DIZZY?

I was riding in one of them dubbel-decked street cars, sed Pa. I was setting up at the top.

Oh, you poor dear, sed Ma, I am so sorry I thought wrong of you.

Maybe Pa thought that he had made a good alibi, but I know better, beekaus Pa has been hitting the high spots so many years that setting in the top of a dubbel-decked street car wuddent maik him any dizzier than it wud maik a iron worker.

Oh, Cruel Love

THERE was a sound of revelry by night. The Bloggses were giving a party.

Mr. Bloggs had just obliged with the touching ballad, "'Tis Love That Makes the World Go Round," and Master Bloggs seized the opportunity to sneak behind a screen with father's pipe.

Shortly afterwards it was observed that Willie wasn't well. His face was pallid, and his eyes stood out. Cried Mrs. Bloggs:

'Goodness, child, what's the matter? I do believe you've been smoking?"

"'Tain't that, ma," he replied untruthfully. "If it's true what father's been singing about, I—I must—be—in—love!"

A Ratty Tale!

A rat, caught alive on board ship, was summarily cast into the sea at a time when a seagull was floating leisurely along by the side of the vessel.

The rat immediately made for and attacked the bird, and after an exciting tussle the seagull was strangled to death.

The astute rodent then climbed on to the lifeless body, hoisted the left wing to serve as a sail, and, manipulating the other wing as an oar, gaily steered his novel craft shorewards.

The natural comment of this will undoubtedly be "Rats!"

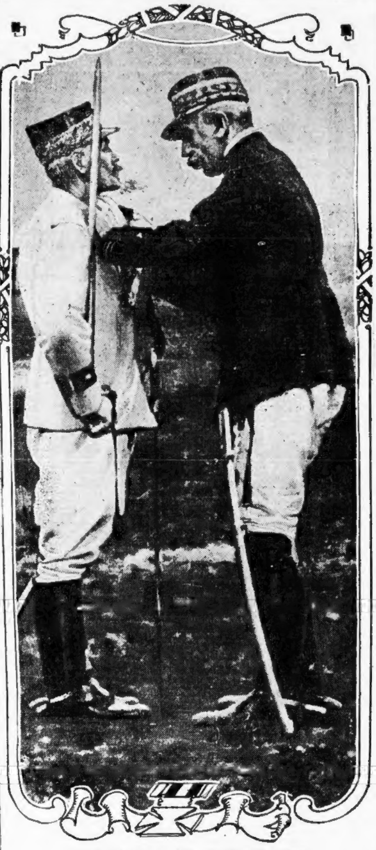
The Worship of Military Glory

"CAN HONOR SET A LEG? NO. OR AN ARM? NO. WHAT IS THAT HONOR? AIR."



General Erulard, on left, and General Lyautey.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THIS photograph is unusually well worth looking at and thinking about, and that for two reasons.

In the first place the man in the dark coat and the embroidered cap, who is fastening a cravat on the collar of the white-coated man before him, is General Lyautey, the commander of the French army in Morocco, who is regarded as the best soldier that France now possesses, and whose countrymen would feel easier in their minds if they were sure that he had a spark of the genius of the first Napoleon. They HOPE he has got it, for they think that it may be needed—not in Morocco, but at home. I wrote recently of a call that has been made upon the French government to furnish General Lyautey with plenty of reinforcements, whether he demands them or not, in order that he may make quick work with the African trouble, and then get back upon French soil, which he may have to defend against a foe that is always dreaded. There is no doubt that many Frenchmen would sleep more soundly if that man were at home, with a compact army ready to obey him. You must have the historic imagination to enable you to understand this feeling; you must recall what happened to France, more than a hundred years ago, when General Bonaparte was away in Egypt, with no means of quickly getting back again.

The second reason which gives particular interest to the photograph before us is of a different nature. It arises from the fact that this is a representation of war in one of its wheedling moods, such as we are not familiar with in America. It is the cunning serpent of military glory charming its victims. The ceremony upon which we look is the bestowal of the decoration of the famous Legion of Honor, which was established by Napoleon to inflame the zeal of his officers and soldiers. If in this case it is not performed on the battlefield itself, as happened so often in Napoleon's time, at least it takes place on the field of war, within view of serried ranks of men, who tomorrow may be called upon to fight and to surrender their lives for the glory of their country—or of their leaders.

General Erulard is being decorated with the magic "cravate." These decorations have a wonderful influence in Europe. Our practical-minded American officers and soldiers are not very fond of showing themselves with their breasts covered with glittering medals and staring ribbons (if they happen to have any), but on the old continent, where war is in the daily thoughts of the people, it is different. Anywhere in a European street you encounter a general with his clothes loaded with flashing metal and gaudy colors, like an African chief in his war panoply. And instead of exciting laughter or derision, he arouses admiration and envy.

Two Maids and a Man

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"LOVE," says Francesca Petrarch, "is the crowning grace of humanity, the holiest right of the soul, the golden link which binds us to duty and truth, the redeeming principle that chiefly reconciles the heart to life and is prophetic of eternal good."

Love, in the opinion of the writer of the following letter, is such a trifling thing that one can give it up for a few dollars and cents and never regret the bargain.

Sometimes one has to be deprived to learn appreciation. This man thinks little of love. He will cherish it beyond all things when he has put it forever beyond his reach.

He writes: "I am twenty-four, and have for eight years been sweethearts with a girl in Austria. I have been in this country five years, and had promised her to return to Austria the coming Fall and marry her and bring her to this country.

"Three months ago I met a young girl who thinks a great deal of me. She is the daughter of a very wealthy real estate man and her parents have taken a great liking to me. If I would marry this girl (and I am sure she would not reject me) I would see my way clear. On the one side is the real love and on the other side the money. I do not know what to do. If I marry the first girl I will have to worry about the future, as I am making only $22 a week and have no chance of bettering myself, although my position is a steady one. If I married the second girl I would not worry about the future at all."

That is true; you wouldn't. And the reason is there wouldn't be any future. Any man who marries for money hasn't as much future as the man on the way to the gallows.

You say you get only $22 a week. Men have married and saved money on much less, and have known happiness all the way.

You say you have no chance of bettering yourself. You are demeaning yourself. Any man who is honest, reliable, faithful and has ambition and ability can better himself. It is a case of not wanting to rise, if he remain at the bottom. You have every chance for advancement. That remains with yourself. A girl who has been true to you eight years will be just the incentive you now lack.

There might be worry with a wife and a small income, but the worry that is built about love is not such a heavy affliction. It is the worry that hedges around indifference or dislike that frets and galls.

You are a free man now. Would you be a free man if you married for money?

I hope you have pride in your good name. Will you continue to have pride in it when you have broken faith with a sweetheart of eight years' standing? I am sure the second girl would not accept a name so tarnished if she knew it.

Go back to Austria as you have promised, and be thankful that with so much treachery in the world, the fates were kind in giving you a woman who is true.

Marry her, love her, cherish her, and never let her know that for a moment you were so base as to think of trading off love for money.

There may be cares, worries and deprivations, but love will atend. "There is no joy like the joy of love." Wealth brings nothing to equal it.

When Wives Strike

Young Wife (sobbing)—Oh, Clarice, Im so unhappy. I'm going h-h-home t-t-to my mother.

Clarice—Good gracious, dear. Surely George is not unkind to you already?

Young Wife (sobbing)—N-n-no, no, no—it's not that; but Mr. Binks, the husband of one of our members, has refused to buy Mrs. Binks a toque, and the Amalgamated Wives' Union has ordered us all out on strike.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

"DO not," said a text book on Man and His Habits, "overlook the material nearest at hand. Make a study of that, and you will know all men."

Daysey Mayme Appleton pondered. How could she hope to win a husband unless she understood the men? And the text book nearest at hand—was Father!

"Why," asked Lysander John Appleton some days later, "are you always following me around with pencil and paper? What are you up to now?"

Could he have looked over Daysey Mayme's shoulder he would have read the following discoveries she had made by taking him as an example of his sex.

A man takes more credit to his sex when he walks the floor one night with the baby than a woman takes to her sex when she supports the whole family.

It is easy for a man to remember his sweetheart's likes and dislikes, but after a woman has married him the only impression she can make on his memory is by preferring the cheapest.

If a man tells a falsehood, his remorse at having told it is never as great as his pride in having told it so well it passed for the truth.

Conversation between a man and his wife never languishes in Summer, the argument whether the kitchen or his office is the hotter lasting from May till September.

No matter how much a man loves his wife, he is of the opinion he served his time telling her so during the engagement.

A man isn't sure of many things concerning his wife, but he is sure of one thing beyond all doubt: That she couldn't have done better.

When a man has trouble at home, he goes outside for sympathy, and finds more trouble.

After he has been told that his hair is getting thin on top, he learns how to handle a hand glass.

Nothing happens to him downtown that he can't make a reason for being cross at home.

In crying over the milk he spills, he stops long enough to claim it was cream.

The farther away he gets from the day of his sin, the more he is convinced he is not guilty.

When he has a chance to get even with an enemy, and passes it up, he gives women the impression it is because he is a good man. But other men know he is saving his bricks for a better opportunity.

PART I.—(Continued).

"I HAVE known all along that I had a police spy for a neighbor, but it didn't faze me. I've nothing to conceal, and I wouldn't mind a regiment of you fellows if you'd only play a straight game. But when it comes to foisting upon me a parcel of letters to which I have no right, and then setting a fellow like you to count my groans or whatever else they expect to hear, I have a right to defend myself, and defend myself I will. But first, let me be sure that my accusations will stand. Come into this closet with me. It abuts on the wall of my room and has its own secret, I know. What is it? I have you at an advantage now, and you shall tell."

* * *

He did have Sweetwater at an advantage, and the detective knew it, and disdained a struggle which would have only called up a crowd, friendly to the other but inimical to himself. Allowing Brotherson to drag him to a closet, he stood quiescent, while the determined man who held him with one hand felt about with the other over the shelves and along the partitions till he came to the hole which had offered such a happy means of communication between the two rooms. Then, with a laugh almost as bitter in tone as that which rang from Brotherson's lips, he acknowledged that business had its necessities and that apologies from him were in order, adding, as they both stepped out into the rapidly darkening room:

"We've played about, we two, and you've come out ahead. Allow me to congratulate you, Mr. Brotherson. You've cleared yourself so far as I am concerned. I leave this ranch tonight."

The frown had come back to the forehead of the indignant man who confronted him.

"So you listened," he cried, "listened when you weren't sneaking under my eye! A fine occupation for a man who can dovetail a corner like an adept! I wish I had left you join the brotherhood you were good enough to mention. They would know how to appreciate your double gifts and how to reward your excellence in the one, if not in the other. What did the police expect to learn about me that they should consider it necessary to call into exercise such extraordinary talents?"

"I'm not good at conundrums. I was given a task to perform, and I performed it," was Sweetwater's sturdy reply. Then slowly, with his eye fixed directly upon his antagonist, "I guess they thought you a man. And so did I until I heard you burn those letters. Fortunately we have copies."

"Letters!" Fury thickened the speaker's voice and lent a savage gleam to his eye. "Forgeries! Make believes! Miss Challoner never wrote the drivel you dare to designate as letters. It was concocted at police headquarters. They made me tell my story and then they found some one who could wield the poetic pen. I'm obliged to them for the confidence they show in my credulity. I credit Miss Challoner with such words as have been given me to read here today? I knew the lady, and I know myself. Nothing that passed between us, not an event in which we were both concerned, has been forgotten by me, and no feature of our intercourse fits the language you have ascribed to her. On the contrary, there is a lamentable contradiction between facts as they were and the fancies you have made her indulge in. And this, as you must acknowledge, not only proves their falsity, but exonerates Miss Challoner from all possible charge of sentimentality."

"Yet she certainly wrote those letters. We had them from Mr. Challoner. The woman who brought them was really her maid. We have not deceived you in this."

"I do not believe you."

It was not offensively said, but the conviction it expressed was absolute. Sweetwater recognized the tone as one of truth, and inwardly laid down his arms. He could never like the man; there was too much iron in his fibre, but he had to acknowledge that as a foe he was invulnerable and therefore admirable to one who had the good sense to appreciate him.

"I do not want to believe you." Thus did Brotherson supplement his former sentence. "For if I were to attribute those letters to her, I should have to acknowledge that they were written to another man than myself. And this would be anything but agreeable to me. Now I am going to my room and to my work. You may spend the rest of the evening or the whole night, if you will, listening at that hole. As heretofore, the labor will be all yours, and the indifference mine."

With a satirical play of features which could hardly be called a smile, he nodded and left the room.

A Change

"IT'S all up. I'm beaten on my own ground." Thus confessed Sweetwater, in great dejection, to himself. But I'm going to take advantage of the permission he's just given me and continue the listening act. Just because he told me to and just because he thinks I won't. I'm sure it's no worse than to spend hours of restless tossing in bed, trying to sleep."

But our young detective did neither.

As he was putting his supper dishes away a messenger boy knocked at his door and handed him a note. It was from Mr. Gryce and ran thus:

Steal off, if you can, and as soon as you can, and meet me in Twenty-ninth street. A discovery has been made which alters the whole situation.

O. B. Again

"WHAT'S happened? Something very important? I ought to hope so after this confounded failure."

"Failure? Didn't he read the letters?"

"Yes, he read them. Had to, but"——

"Didn't weaken? Eh?"

"No, he didn't weaken. You can't get water out of a millstone. You may squeeze and squeeze; but it's your fingers which suffer, not it. He thinks we manufactured those letters ourselves on purpose to draw him."

"Humph! I knew we had a reputation for fineness, but I didn't know that it ran that high."

"He denies everything. Said she would never have written such letters to him; even goes so far as to declare that if she did write them—he must be strangely ignorant of her handwriting—they were meant for some other man than himself. All rot, but"—— A hitch of the shoulder conveyed Sweetwater's disgust. His uniform good nature was strangely disturbed.

To Be Continued Tuesday.

The Lady and the Lucre

By DOROTHY DIX

By DOROTHY DIX.

A SOCIALIST orator, who appears to be a false alarm as a heart smasher, has been making a speech in which he charges that women are sordid creatures, unduly given to the worship of the golden calf.

"Marriage is a fraud," he thundered, "and every married man knows it. The women who have refused to marry me refused me because I was poor. The modern girl marries a man with automobiles, and turns down the fellow who brings her a bag of peanuts and an honest love for an evening's entertainment."

Stuff and nonsense. It is, of course, soothing to a man's vanity to believe that it is his lack of money, and not his lack of good looks and personal attractiveness, that causes girls to give him the mitten. Unfortunately for his argument, however, the facts do not bear him out.

The average young woman is not the avaricious creature he paints her. She doesn't think too much about money and what the man she marries can give her. On the contrary she pays entirely too little attention to this side of the question, and is altogether too prone to believe that she can live on bread and cheese, and kisses, after marriage.

A Way with Him

Because a man was poor and ineligible never yet kept a girl from falling in love with him if he was handsome, or picturesque, and interesting, or had a way with him, a fact which many harassed mothers and chaperones will confirm with tears in their eyes. That the man with empty pockets has no difficulty in winning the female heart is exemplified every day in the rash marriages of young people who blithely tackle together the problems of how to live on nothing a year.

Cupid has not become a money broker, and for whatever reason a girl refuses a man it is seldom for the legitimate and sensible one that he hasn't enough funds to finance a home. She may refuse him because he has pale blue eyes, or is fat, or she doesn't like the way he dances or for a hundred other inconsequential whims and fancies, but not because he is poor.

Yet to leave the realm of sentiment and come down to the bed rock of facts where matrimony is lived the girl who refuses to marry the man who can only give her a bag of peanuts shows sound sense and judgment. No matter how shocking it is to our poetic ideals money is just as much at the base of the successful matrimonial partnership as it is of the successful business partnership.

To be happy a home must rest upon a sound financial platform. Riches are not necessary, but a competence is. Love can survive absence and death, but not the petty annoyance of the bill collector always pounding on the door.

Especially is this true if before marriage a man and woman have been accustomed to the luxuries of life. Then, if their whole existence becomes a never-ending struggle to make the ends meet; if they have to crucify their tastes and inclinations every hour of the day; if they have to live in squalid surroundings, they would be more than human if they did not regret the price they paid, and say to themselves that love and marriage are not worth it.

Most of us have our big moments when we can make a grand and spectacular sacrifice for the one we love, but we are not capable of being keyed up to the heroic all the time, and for this reason while we could sublimely die for the man or woman we love, we can't go shabby and hungry for them without considering ourselves persecuted martyrs.

Therefore the young woman who wants her marriage to turn out a success does well to ascertain beforehand whether the man who is asking her can afford the luxury of a wife, and also, and in particular, how many of his own personal indulgences he will have to give up in order to support a home, for thereby can she figure out just how likely he is to be satisfied or filled with dark brown regrets.

The Woman's Side

As for the woman's side of the matter, it is folly to belittle the part that a comfortable living plays in her happiness in life. It is true that money will not ease a broken heart, in case she is unfortunate enough to make a disastrous marriage, but it cushions all of the hardest places, and is a buffer between her and the cruelest jolts of fate. No matter what her sorrows the woman who has freedom from financial anxiety, and her home, and place in society, and pretty clothes, has her consolation. She is in far better case than a woman with similar woes who has, in addition, to fight the wolf from the door, and this being true it is surprising that women pay as little heed to money as they do when they marry.

Her Real Envy

The chief reason, though, that women admire men who can give them automobiles instead of peanuts, to use the Socialist orator's phrase, is not so much the selfish desire for luxury as because every woman yearns with unspeakable yearning for the man she loves to succeed. She may have no personal ambition, but she would die to see him sitting on the top rung of the ladder, and it breaks her heart when she finds that he has not the strength nor wit nor energy nor courage to climb, but that he is contented to stay at the bottom.

The envy that fills the breast of the shabbily dressed woman as she brushes shoulders with some lady in satins and diamonds is not for the other's finery, but because the other woman has a husband who has some quality of manhood and strength that her own husband lacks. She would like to be married to a man who could do things, who had the genius of achievement, who was a master and a ruler among men, who could compel success; and no matter how much she loved her husband, or how she pities him, she cannot help having a little tinge of contempt for him.

Women worship success and successful men, and the knowledge of this has been the spur that has made many a man get out of the peanut class and into the automobile one.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

"Yes," said Charles, "I have had some trying experiences in my time. I was struck senseless once."

"And when," asked Sybil, archly, "do you expect to recover?"

Patient—Here, that isn't the tooth I want pulled!

Dentist—Never mind, I'm coming to it.

* * *

A well-known bishop, being told by a country parson, "My lord, I have not had a holiday for five years," replied—

"Then I'm sorry for your congregation."

* * *

Little James, while at a neighbor's, was given a piece of bread and butter, and politely said "Thank you."

"That's right, James," said the lady. "I like to hear little boys say 'Thank you.'"

"Well," rejoined James, "if you want to hear me say it again, you might put some jam on it."

* * *

"What does this mean, Bridget?" exclaimed the lady of the house, returning from shopping.

"The telephone's been taken out."

"Sure, ma'am, the girl across the way came over and said her missus would like to use it for a little while, and I slut it over to her; but I had a terrible job gettin' it unscrewed from the wall, ma'am."

SAY CLUB RAID WAS ILLEGAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—When Inspector John F. Dwyer made a raid upon the Lyceum Social and Literary Club at No. 158 West Forty-fifth street last Wednesday night, on warrants describing it as a gambling house, he invaded one of the card clubs, mostly used for playing poker, which have been operated here unmolested for a generation. He also exhibited a police activity which may have won him praise. But, according to a city official, he made the city liable for a probably successful civil suit to recover for the damage, estimated at several thousand dollars, which was done to furniture and furnishings of the expensively fitted place.

Inspector Dwyer seized, with other presumptive evidence, the official report book of the Lyceum Club's secretary, and therewith the roster of its membership. Men devoted to social and literary pursuits and identified as such from Wall street brokers to kings of the clothing on installment system were found on the Lyceum's list. New England is well represented.

Samuel B. Hiller, the second vice-president, can prove his literary taste and how it has profited him. His report of the annual meeting last January is a gem. G. Dayton Lebot is entered as the then newly elected president; Louis M. Remach, vice-president, and Julius Mehlinger, secretary and treasurer.

Alliances between art and literature are exemplified in the club roster by the names of Naban Franko, erstwhile leader of the Metropolitan Opera House orchestra; Victor Moore, star of plays of Broadway, and "Sam" Bernard. "Sol" Lichtenstein established his literary status by pointing to his long record as a bookmaker, and Robert H. Moore may have sought relaxation from the problems of other days, such as those which confront him as attorney for "Whitey" Lewis, one of those held as assassins of Herman Rosenthal. W. L. Draper of Niagara Falls is the name and address of a representative of the northwest corner of the State in the Legislature.

13 NEW BEDFORD MILLS TO OPEN

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 31.—The Textile Council prepared today to ask the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration to arrange a conference with the cotton manufacturers to see if the six weeks' lockout can be settled honorably.

It was reported today that the thirteen manufacturers who have closed their mills, plan to re-open them on September 9, to see how many operatives will return and thus test the union strength.

CATCH AD TAKER AND GET PRIZE

The Misses Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN will be at New England's famous pleasure resorts tomorrow and Monday.

At Revere Beach Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN will stroll along the beach and the boulevard from Condit's to Revere street tomorrow afternoon from 2 to 5 p. m.

She will carry a Green Parasol.

Miss Ad Taker will have an order for $100. She will be instructed to present this order to the person who is keen enough to recognize her.

The only requirement is that the person who identifies her must carry, in plain sight, a copy of tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN, and must say: "You are Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN." The person who does this will receive a $100 order without question or further trouble.

If the person who identifies her as directed has in his or her possession a receipt for a Boston AMERICAN want ad for any day this week or for tomorrow, $100 extra will be paid.

Miss Ad Taker will be at Nantasket between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m., tomorrow afternoon. You will have to find her by the fact that she will carry a Green Parasol and from this description: She is sixteen years old; weighs abiut 100 pounds; she has light hair and blue eyes.

Miss Ad Taker, at 2 p. m., will stroll along the boardwalk from the roller coaster by the Hotel Nantasket to the bath house, and also along the walk from the boat landing by the Old Mill to Paragon Park gate. If not captured by 3 o'clock she will enter Paragon Park and remain there until caught.

The person who identifies her must carry, in plain sight, a copy of next Sunday's AMERICAN, and must say: "You are Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN." The person who does this will receive a $100 order without question or further trouble. If you have in your possession a receipt for a Boston AMERICAN want ad for any day this week or for tomorrow, you will be paid $50 extra.

There will be a special prize provided for the capture of Miss Ad Taker on Labor Day, in the White City, Worcester, between 2 and 5 p. m.

You will have to identify her from the Green Parasol and this description: She is twenty-two years old; she weighs 100 pounds; she has dark eyes and dark hair and she will carry a Green Parasol. To secure the reward you must carry a copy of the Sunday AMERICAN in plain sight, and say to her, inside of the White City: "You are Miss Ad Taker of the Boston AMERICAN." The first man, woman or child who identifies her, as directed, will receive a Boston AMERICAN order for $100 in gold.

If you have a receipt for an AMERICAN want ad for any day this week or for tomorrow you will be paid $50 extra.

DEATHS

BISHOP CHARLES C. GRAFTON of the Fond Du Lac Episcopal diocese, is dead. He was for sixteen years rector of the Church of the Advent, Boston. He was born in Boston April 12, 1830. His father was Major Joseph Grafton, a surveyor of the port of Boston, and his mother Ann Maria Gurley, a belle of Boston, eighty-five years ago.

DUC DECAZES died at the family residence in Chantilly, France, following an attack of paralysis which seized him last night. He was forty-eight years old. The Duc Decazes was married in Paris in 1888 to Isabelle Blanche Singer, who died in 1896.

GEORGE M. WHITAKER, for many years head of the Massachusetts dairy bureau, is dead at Fort Atkins, Wis. He was born in Southbridge, Mass., sixty-one years ago. He was an ex-president of the Massachusetts Press Association, and of the Boston Press and Bowdoin clubs and president of the Farmers' National Congress.

JUSTICE CHARLES A. BLAIR of the Michigan Supreme Court is dead at Lansing, aged fifty-eight.

COLONEL ARCHIBALD S. ALEXANDER of Hoboken, Democratic candidate for Congress in New Jersey and member of Governor Wilson's staff, is dead in New York.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, a planter, collateral kinsman of George Washington, is dead at Richmond, Vt., aged fifty-eight.

ALFRED HARTWELL, formerly chief justice of the Supreme Court of Hawaii, is dead in Honolulu, aged seventy-six.

Big Audience Greets Stock Company in Production of "The New York Idea"

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

The drama moved uptown last evening and settled contentedly in the new St. James Theatre, which now joins Boston's growing family of playhouses. It was a happy occasion for Mr. Gulesian and his company, and they beamed good naturedly at the big audience.

There was no doubt that everything was supremely agreeable to Mr. Gulesian and his players, for they spoke plainly on the subject, as is the style with stock companies just coming into life. If first-night indications amount to anything the new theatre and those who are concerned in its operation are at the beginning of a pleasant journey toward prosperity.

A first-night audience at a stock theatre is an institution that stands by itself—it needs no props to keep it on its feet. And it was just such an audience that started the St. James Theatre on its career last evening. There was a friendly word for the new theatre and a warm greeting for the actors, not omitting the customary shower of flowers. Speeches were in order, too, and Mr. Gulesian's voice was filled with words of hope. His was a profit-sharing speech, in which he made generous promises for the future and asked for nothing in return but capacity audiences.

Miss Grey Wins Audience.

The new company stood up well under the handicap of a first performance on a strange stage. "The New York Idea," which once served Mrs. Fiske exceedingly well, proved a safe play for the launching of Mr. Gulesian's players. Light and airy, and a bit satirical, it kept everybody in an easy frame of mind.

As a playing organization, the company should be able to face its burdens easily. Miss Katherine Grey, who is not unfamiliar to local stock patrons, carried herself gracefully through the evening. She won her audience at the beginning, and held it securely to the end.

Robert T. Haines, who will engage in all the pretty heroics of the Huntington avenue drama, displayed all the qualities of a regular leading man, and steered a straight course. His acting was sound and well balanced.

Old friends smiled across the footlights at friendly faces. Theodore Friebus, Kate Ryan, Dudley Hawley, Ethel Grey Terry and Carl Stowe found themselves in comfortable surroundings, while Beth Franklyn and Charles Abbe were accepted at once on their face value. There was a spontaneous greeting for every member of the company, including Will H. Gregory, whose stage management was responsible for the smooth running of the machinery.

Mr. Gulesian made it plain last evening that the productions at the new theatre will be neither scant nor unfinished. Barring the natural nervousness of a first performance and an unfamiliarity with the speaking requirements of the theatre, the individual efforts of the company were satisfactory.

Theatre Starts Well.

Mr. Gulesian earned a word of praise for the scenic perfection found in "The New York Idea." His advance promise of substantial productions was faithfully kept, and if he continues as he has begun, no fault can be found with that department of the new theatre.

Out of a first night performance crowded with unusual events that had but little relation to the real service of the new theatre, there came positive indications that Mr. Gulesian's entrance into the dramatic field will yield its own happy reward if he maintains his present course.

The St. James has, at least, started well.

SEE SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

TO GIVE AWAY WILSON PICTURE

Everyone, everywhere in this great, broad country of ours, will want a picture of Woodrow Wilson.

Not an ordinary picture or a cheap chromo, but a handsome specimen of art work.

Such a picture—a large photogravure on a heavy sheet of India tint paper and in size, 20½ inches by 15 inches—will be given free with the coupon which will be printed in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

Each picture is plate marked and bears the autograph of Mr. Wilson.

Arrangements have been completed for the free distribution of these pictures to all who care to call for them at the AMERICAN Promotion Department, No. 5 Winthrop square, just around the corner from Summer and Devonshire streets.

Mail orders will be filled on receipt of the coupon and five cents to cover actual cost of mailing and handling. There will be no charge when the picture is called for.

POLITICAL NEWS

Vermont's election is only three days away. The most of the spellbinders from Massachusetts have already left the State and today Colonel Roosevelt leaves.

The wild lands issue is proving disastrous for the Republican candidate for Governor of Maine. Those hard-headed Republicans can only see a high-toned and legalized form of graft in the processes by which State officials bought valuable public lands for a song and then turned the transactions into thousands of dollars for themselves.

Second place upon the Bull Moose ticket is vacant again. James P. Magenis declines to make the running and the Moosers are casting about for another candidate. It is hoped to find some one from the western part of the State. The eastern part is pretty well taken care of at present.

Labor Day always means the real opening of State campaigns in Massachusetts. The fur will fly in the preliminary contests this year as never before in the old Bay State. And there are more candidates, too, than ever before.

Charles H. Choate, chairman of the Progressives' City Committee in Lawrence, is a prominent merchant of the mill city, has been president of the Common Council there and head of the Republican organization.

Governor Johnson of California is to speak in Worcester late in September. With Colonel Roosevelt at Springfield next Monday, the Progressives of Massachusetts will have the opportunity of hearing both their party leaders.

Champ Clark made a distinct hit all through Maine. He talked issues close to the people. There were no glittering generalities nor wild promises held forth by the Speaker. Maine heard all too little of the Speaker.

"Little Johnny" Sheehan is again a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the House in Ward 9. His friends say he stands a good chance of winning this time. Johnny carries the "Life of Abraham Lincoln" around with him and is ready for hecklers with some of the repartee of the Emancipator as employed in Sangamon County, Ill.

Governor Wilson will make two speeches in Massachusetts, according to tentative arrangements. One will be in Boston, and the other in the western part of the State.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

The thousands of cars produced annually by individual makers in this country necessarily must seem fantastically impossible to the Frenchman who has a chance to find out how many cars are produced in the factories of his native land, once the leader of the automobile industry of the world. A man interested in the subject says the twenty-seven leading makers in France produced a total of less than 26,000 cars in 1911. There are at least half a dozen concerns in this country which individually produce more cars than all of France, and a few of them that produce more than twice as many.

HOW TO GET THERE { From Forest Hills El. Sta., take cars marked either Grove st., via Washington st., or Washington st. to Grove st. or East Walpole. Get off at our branch office at Grove st.

Extra large, brand new tents sectioned off into two, three and four good rooms will be given, absolutely free, to every purchaser.

These tents are plenty large to move the whole family into, furniture and all; can be occupied at once. Come out and see over fifty happy families now living in these tents. They are saving their rent of $10.00 to $15.00 every month. The rent they are saving is gradually paying for the lot. Value of tents $24.00 to $32.00 each. The entire property is an immense shaded picnic grove, highly elevated, in a healthy, clean, well-built-up neighborhood. The value of these lots should practically double in the next three or four years. A restaurant and store is on our property. Handy to other stores, schools, churches and cars. City water in front of each lot. Agents are on the land every day from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M. This advertisement must be presented to our agent at time of selecting a lot, in order to entitle you to one of the new tents. The number of tents is limited, so come out today and bring this ad with you. SECURITIES REAL ESTATE TRUST, 101 Tremont Street, Room 915A.

The Tremendous Importance of a Man Who Will Do His Full Duty in the District Attorney's Office Strikingly Illustrated

The tremendous importance of a man who will do his full duty in the district attorney's office cannot receive a better illustration than in the events which led to the settlement of the Boston Elevated Railway Company strike and to such an exposure of the Lawrence dynamite outrage as will make its repetition most unlikely for years to come.

An honest, upstanding district attorney exercises more restraint upon the criminal tendencies of certain men in high places than all the other forces of society combined. Such men fear nothing but jail. They have found, or think they have found, that money will palliate everything but a term in jail. They have a decalogue all their own, and it has but one commandment. "Thou shalt not be thrust into prison."

To a man living in a narrow cell, sleeping on a hard cot, eating coarse prison food, who contemplates his great worldly possessions outside, there is all the ghastly mockery of a warm and sumptuous room to a shivering wanderer who peeks in at the window out of a bitter Winter night.

Such men, who do not hesitate to do criminal acts when it is perfectly safe, have a mortal dread of an honest district attorney.

When a district attorney is elected it is quickly known among the select whether he is "safe or sane" or whether he is a "demagogue." Thus it is that the good that an honest and upstanding district attorney does the community is not measured by the indictments or convictions, but by the restraining influence which his presence exercises upon men who have too much to lose to take any risks with the criminal law.

The wise ones know that during John B. Moran's term of office pickings were dry at the State House and corporation measures were discussed ON THEIR MERITS and failed to pass while he lived, that went through on well-greased ways when death had removed his threatening hand.

Mr. Pelletier has rendered the community A VERY SUBSTANTIAL SERVICE in his investigation of the cold-blooded conspiracy to put dynamite in the homes of inoffensive working people in Lawrence at the risk of their lives and with the deliberate intent to make the people believe that they were would-be dynamiters and murderers.

Whether or not the district attorney has laid his hands upon the right men, it is certain that the conspiracy existed and that the lives of these mill operatives were jeopardized in the interest of mill owners.

It would be well also if Mr. Pelletier could find jurisdiction to investigate the whole judicial proceedings by which Ettor and his companion have been kept in jail now for nearly a year upon an atrocious charge of murder.

The AMERICAN believes that the day is coming when the proceedings against Ettor will be regarded as the gravest scandal in the judicial history of this Commonwealth.

The purpose of the attack on Ettor was perfectly clear. A law had been enacted which required the courts to impanel a jury and let the jury decide the facts concerning the violation of an injunction against labor leaders during a strike. This took much of the poison out of the misuse of the injunctions against workingmen on a strike.

It had before been the practice of the employer to rush to the courts, alleging that his property was in danger, and secure an injunction against the strikers, forbidding them doing things which the law never forbade them to do before; and then to hale the effective leaders into court on the charge that they had violated the injunction, and then have them found guilty by a prejudiced judicial officer upon facts which they would never think of offering to a jury.

All this was done for the purpose of depriving the strikers of their leaders, and if the law requiring a jury to decide the facts had not been passed before the Lawrence strike the old injunction method would probably have been used against Mr. Ettor.

But after the passage of that wise and humane and just law, which is one of the monuments of the first Foss administration, they had to resort to another device. On a charge of murder the court is not obliged to permit a man to give bail. Ettor was charged with murder, bail was denied him, and he is now in jail awaiting trial.

If the proceedings against Ettor should prove to be a conspiracy like the dynamite plot, those men who were parties to it will find that they builded worse than they knew.

In the meantime let Mr. Pelletier go on with his good work. Even though he may be charged by some as being moved by political ambition, HE WILL NOT FAIL TO RECEIVE JUST CREDIT, because it has not yet become an offense for a public servant to seek public applause by DOING HIS DUTY.

Dr. Eliot Finds Fault with Miss Addams

Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, sent out from his Summer home at Mt. Desert an interview of emphatic protest against the political aspirations of women. He thinks that "the men ought to be able to regulate their own politics to meet all needs without direct assistance of the women." In particular, Dr. Eliot thinks that Miss Jane Addams' action in seconding a presidential nomination at Chicago the other day was a "spectacular proceeding * * * in very bad taste."

It is easy to concede that Dr. Eliot is a learned man. It is not easy to believe that he is altogether wise.

He has a deserved reputation for sincerity and moral courage, and must be credited with a real concern for the public welfare. But in this matter of the movement of womankind toward the larger interests of society—as in some other namable matters of current social interest—Dr. Eliot speaks without any patent evidence of insight. The sound of his voice is like that of a man walking in a cloister and reading out of an ancient book.

A wiser word was spoken by an earnest gentlewoman to a throng in New York City the other afternoon: "They tell us that our mission is to prepare our children for the world, but we find that the necessity is also laid upon us to prepare the world for our children."

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

PERKINS EDITORIAL MASTERLY

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Your editorial, "George W. Perkins and the Roosevelt Progressive Party," free as it was from partisan bias, was a masterly written article. We need men of ability in national politics; men of influence and intelligence. Because a man has a fortune of millions of dollars and is interested in big industries, does not qualify him as an "undesirable citizen." Any friend of justice and "a square deal" will appreciate your statesmanly views.

NONE CAN TOUCH THE AMERICAN

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Allow me the pleasure of congratulating you on your fine editorial which appeared in the AMERICAN Monday, August 12.

For brilliance and patriotism it has no equal.

The whole of the AMERICAN is good, but the editorials are an education in themselves.

I read a number of other papers, but none can touch the AMERICAN. It is right up to the times always. Again I wish to congratulate you. Keep up the good work.

Abraham Lincoln Wanted EVERY Man to Have a CHANCE

What He Had to Say Concerning Labor Unionism, Strikes and the Attitude of Capital and Labor Is of Particularly Timely Interest at This Time.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN wanted EVERY man to have a CHANCE.

"I am glad to see a system of labor in New England," he once said, "where the workingmen are not OBLIGED to work under all circumstances."

He said this and much more concerning the attitude of Capital and Labor in a speech made right in these New England States, a speech which is seldom heard of, yet one which is most timely.

His remarks will be printed more at length, and will be found interesting by every labor man in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

* * *

And speaking of every man having a CHANCE. YOU not only have a chance, but an EQUAL chance with EVERYONE in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

EVERYONE can find instruction and entertainment in its incomparable features, stories and pictures. The Sunday AMERICAN has the GREATEST circulation in New England. Here are mentioned a few of the articles and features prepared for the AMERICAN'S million of readers tomorrow.

* * *

If there's one place in the world where one would NOT expect to find gay high life it is on Uncle Sam's submarines. Yet the Sunday AMERICAN has a story concerning persons and events on board the little swimming boats of the North Atlantic squadron which is most surprising to say the least.

There have been merry events on some of the flotilla off Massachusetts ports, and the story of the happenings and the naval disturbance they are causing will be told in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

* * *

Springfield's maids were set in a flutter of excitement last week when the Sunday AMERICAN pointed out what a squad of eligible bachelors were roaming around loose. THIS WEEK the AMERICAN will give the Maids of WORCESTER, "Heart of the Commonwealth," a chance. You've no idea how many very eligible bachelors there are in Worcester. And the most eligible of them all is quite some catch.

* * *

Everybody in New England is talking about the Sunday AMERICAN'S stories of the goings on at Narragansett. Everybody at Narragansett is wondering WHO the reporter is who has found out so much about their gay Summer fantasies.

There was another big ball at the Pier and the AMERICAN representative was "among those present." He was VERY MUCH present and his story of what happened, how heiresses and titled folks made merry till daylight, is most entertaining.

* * *

Concerning society's Summer "stunts," a Boston society woman the other day impersonated a French maid and got some vivid insights into the ways of her society friends when they think none of "their set" are around. She tells some most amusing stories of her experiences.

* * *

The Sunday AMERICAN'S exposure of contract labor conditions in the Rhode Island State Prison, which moved Governor Pothier to start an immediate investigation, has stirred "Little Rhody" as nothing in years.

Now it has been discovered that a former member of a Presidential Cabinet is behind one of the largest prison contract concerns in the country.

* * *

There's a big sensation in Boston tailor shops. The styles are going to change, we're told, and the old Pickwickian styles are "coming in." Imagine Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald, Thomas W. Lawson and other Bostonians notable for the stylish cut of their apparel in Dickens' garb. You should see how they look in the pictures in Sunday's AMERICAN.

* * *

In a few days the school children will suspend their Summer pastimes and begin their studies. Every parent in Boston is particularly interested in the plans of Superintendent Dyer to improve the educational system in this city. Mr. Dyer has original and advanced ideas on the needs of modern education. He is a practical man and believes the children of today should be taught practical things instead of the rapidly disappearing dead languages and such. The Sunday AMERICAN will print an article of absorbing interest to everyone who has a boy or girl attending the public schools.

There is a Boston man who is making money raising apples. His orchard is run on scientific principles and PROVES that New Englanders can raise good apples if they wish to take the proper care of their trees. This orchardist's case is particularly interesting because his next-door neighbor has made a failure of apple culture. The trees on both estates were planted at the same time by the same man. ONE orchard was cultivated. The OTHER was neglected. If YOU have an orchard which isn't bearing good fruit you'll be interested to see HOW the SUCCESSFUL orchardist made his orchard PAY. The story and pictures will be found on the AMERICAN'S Farm Page, which is edited by a noted expert agriculturist.

Perhaps you've noticed that tomorrow is the FIRST SUNDAY of the month.

That means bills to a lot of people and much worrisome financiering, but to Sunday AMERICAN readers it means MAGAZINE SUNDAY.

Tomorrow's Magazine is surely the best one yet issued. It is a FICTION number, and a score of famous artists and authors have contributed to make it entertaining. The cover design is a beautiful girl by Penrhyn Stanlaws. Gelett Burgess contributes one of the most interesting short stories. There are two short stories of thrilling adventure. Elbert Hubbard discusses Sunday Baseball. There are many other attractive features. The Sunday AMERICAN'S Magazine is "hitting it's pace." Don't miss tomorrow's offering.

There is another announcement that will interest Sunday AMERICAN readers.

THERE IS A NEW FAMILY IN THE COLORED COMIC SECTION.

"Their Only Child," George McManus' famous "Snookums," has arrived, and will from now on be a member of the AMERICAN'S family of funny folks.
